GERMANS DEFY U. S. ON SINKING

Aircraft Workers Back on Jobs at Inglewood

Although the army still controls the plant, all the 7,000 day workers at the North American Aviation corporation plant at Inglewood, Cal., have returned to their jobs, and, according to officials, almost full production has been reached on the strike-interrupted output of warplanes. Workers daily jam the walkways to the plant, as pictured above. The strike was called by the CIO's UAW group for a 75-cent-an-hour minimum wage instead of the prevailing 50 cents, and a blanket 10-cent an hour boost for all employes.

Quizzes Union Head On Parole Violation

Mackey to Qustion Jailed Cleveland Strike Leader

William K. Mackey, Mansfield resident while he was chaplain of the Ohio State Reformatory and now head of the state division of pardon and parole, today was to begin an investigation into activities of the president of CIO union at the Cleveland plants of the Aluminum company of America.

He is listed in parole records as Paul Mehringer, and says his middle name is Martin. As Paul Martin he is head of the Cleveland union of the National Association of Die Casting Workers and one of the leaders of the three-day strike of Cleveland aluminum workers.

Mackey, who directed Parole Officer M. J. Hachin to obtain Martin-Mehringer's arrest, said he would investigate the circumstances of the union official's departure from the state without written permission.

Martin went to Washington this week to participate in negotiations for settlement of a strike at the Cleveland ALCOA plants, called Monday by the union, and ended by a settlement arranged through the defense mediation board.

"I left the state because I received a subpena from the mediation board," Martin declared at police station, "and I felt that the federal government was greater than the state government."

Mackey said the circumstances of the trip would be considered in his report to the state pardon and parole commission.

Meanwhile, the question of Martin's citizenship was raised today by Cleveland draft board officials.

WILLIAM K. MACKEY

If Martin was on parole when he registered for military service, he was not a citizen and perjured himself under oath, draft officials said.

The union president had served more than seven years in Ohio penitentiary, beginning in 1931, upon conviction of robbing Carl Milling, at that time a chain grocery manager, but now an ALCOA employee and a member of the local union headed by Martin. Milling said he was unaware that Mehringer and Martin were the same man.

The union official told Hanchin he felt compelled to go to Washington for the mediation efforts because of the belief that the "federal government was greater than the state government."

He asserted he advised ALCOA workers last week against striking and asked them to await a report from the defense media-

RUSH TO FILE WITH ELECTION DEADLINE NEAR

Candidates Hurry to Present Petitions, Must Get In Before 6:30 Today.

ORR FILES FOR MAYOR

Locke Also Definitely Puts Self In For Second Term; Tickets Filling.

With the filing deadline only a few hours away, slates of candidates for the primary municipal campaign in Mansfield were nearly complete this afternoon. Candidates must file their petitions by 6:30 p. m. today with the election board.

James F. Orr, who announced yesterday as a "dark horse" candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, filed his petition today. Fred M. Bushnell, former Mansfield postmaster who obtained petitions for mayor yesterday, had not filed shortly after noon today.

Candidates for Mansfield and Shelby offices were hurrying today to get their petitions filed before the deadline. Nine more, including seven in Mansfield and two in Shelby, had filed early this afternoon. All nine of the present Mansfield councilmen had filed today for re-election.

Mayor W. J. Locke, seeking re-election for a second term on the Republican ticket, filed late yesterday. G. O. P. leaders predicted he will have no opposition in the August primary.

With a candidate for mayor, the Democrats needed only one candidate for a council post to complete their municipal slate for the primary. No one had filed this afternoon in the Second ward, traditionally Republican.

The Republican ticket lacked two candidates, and party leaders were not very hopeful of getting one to run for council in the Democratic Fifth ward. The other vacancy was for one of the three council-at-large posts. Roy Vaughn and James Anderson will be the candidates for the other two councilman-at-large posts on the Republican ticket, while Clifford G. Knarr, 72 Ausdale avenue, was mentioned as the probable third man.

Only five primary contests, four of them on the Democratic ticket, were in prospect today on the basis of petitions taken out and filed at noon.

The lone G.O.P. contest is expected to be in the Sixth ward where Paul Bush and B. L. Gouge

Say Subs Will Sink All Ships Carrying Aid

Berlin Spokesman Ignores Charge That Robin Moor Carried No Contraband; Strengthening of American Navy In Atlantic Seen as Reply.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—A definite charge that the sunken American freighter Robin Moor was carrying contraband was made in Berlin today.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Any ship carrying contraband to England—whether its name be Robin Moor or anything else—will be sunk by German submarines, an official Wilhelmstrasse spokesman said today.

The spokesman did not formally acknowledge the charge made by the United States government that a Nazi U-boat sank the Robin Moor in the South Atlantic.

His statement took this form:

"The government will not be stampeded in the case of the Robin Moor. It will take its own time and investigate thoroughly before issuing any statement.

"But we are sinking, we have sunk and in the future will sink every ship en route to England carrying contraband.

"It does not matter whether its name is Robin Moor, Exmoor or anything else."

The German government has repeatedly warned that American ships carrying war materials run the risk of being sunk by Nazi U-boats or surface raiders. In a speech to the reichstag some months ago, Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler said:

"Every ship with contraband that comes within the range of our torpedoes anywhere will be sunk."

The Wilhelmstrasse brushed aside assertions that the Robin Moor carried no contraband as a "useless argument."

"Naturally," the spokesman said, "England is making the most out of claims that the ship was torpedoed without cause—an argument designed to agitate American minds.

"But if a U-boat sank the Robin Moor, the submarine commander undoubtedly handled the matter strictly in accordance with international regulations.

"It is a military affair in the first place. We have no intention of being rushed into a hasty conclusion but will let the investigation take its course before making any statement."

The spokesman recalled the case of the Egyptian liner Zamzam, which was sunk in the South Atlantic after all her passengers and crew had been rescued. Germany's announcement of the incident, he said, trailed far behind "British

U. S. WILL MAKE STRONG PROTEST

Capital Hears Demand For Restitution To Be Made To Nazis For Torpedoing.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States will lodge a vigorous protest with Germany on the sinking of the Robin Moor, it was learned authoritatively today, citing the evidence of survivors that the vessel was torpedoed deliberately by a Nazi U-boat.

The state department's note, informed quarters predicted, will also demand that restitution be made for the loss of American life and property—35 persons are still missing—and that assurances be given against repetition of the incident.

There was intense interest, meanwhile, in what President Roosevelt might have to say on the subject.

When the sinking was first reported, Mr. Roosevelt asked the nation to suspend judgment until the facts were known, but yesterday the White House said there seemed to be "no longer any reason" for that.

At the state department, it was said, the preliminary report on how the Robin Moor went to the bottom provided ample eyewitness testimony for an immediate demand on the German

Allies Close In on Beirut, Set For Final Assault on Damascus

Shore Forces Push North of Sidon as Command Reports Advance In All Sectors; Vichy Troops Resist.

BULLETIN

DAMASCUS, Syria—(AP)—This Syrian capital, believed to be the oldest inhabited city of the world, probably will not be defended when and if British and De Gaullist siege forces break its outlying defenses.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Rebuffed in a peace gesture, British and Free French forces in Lebanon and Syria were authoritatively reported today to be closing in on Beirut and broadening the base for perhaps the final assault on Damascus.

A high source in London declared that forces advancing along the Mediterranean shore of the Bible lands had pushed north of Sidon to a point within 20 miles of Beirut, Lebanese capital, while Free French forces had taken two villages east of Kissoue, facing Damascus 10 miles away.

The Middle East command at Cairo acknowledged that the Allies had been "temporarily delayed in certain sectors by resistance of Vichy troops," but "had by yesterday evening made further progress in all sectors of their penetration."

The Vichy government was answering with the arms at its command a British overture through Madrid suggesting that to save French blood it should instruct defense forces to offer no further resistance to measures taken by the Allies "to prevent the enemy from using Syria as a base of operations against them."

The British disavowed any territorial designs against French territory and declared again that the invasion by De Gaullist and British imperial forces—Vichy's avowals nothwithstanding—was necessitated to counter German ambitions.

The exchange of notes — a French protest at the outset of the fighting and the British reply—were handled through Vichy and

HAIL AND WIND DAMAGE CROPS

Farm Fields In Lexington Area Hit; Heavy Rain Washes Out Corn.

Three severe hail and wind storms which swept Richland county late Thursday and early today left heavy crop damage in their paths in southern and northern sections of the county and brought nearly an inch of rain to Mansfield.

While the center of the storms missed Mansfield, the city's streets and basements in a number of homes were flooded when the water overflowed sewers.

The rainfall brought the total for the first 13 days of June to 2.72 inches in Mansfield, as compared to only 1.45 inches in all of May. Rainfall here yesterday measured .83 of an inch.

Heaviest damage to crops was reported in the Lexington and Troy township area where young corn was beaten down by hail and wheat, which will soon be ready for cutting, was flattened by the wind and rain in a storm shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday.

The downpour washed out corn and cut deep gullies in hilly fields, farmers said. A number of trees were blown down north of Lexington, but no roads were reported blocked.

First of the three storms, which struck Mansfield about 2 p. m. Thursday, was more severe north of the city. Reports from farm communities between Mansfield and Shelby said the rain reached cloudburst proportions there.

A third storm at dawn today brought another heavy downpour and sharp flashes of lightning in Mansfield, but no damage was reported here.

More thunderstorms were forecast for Ohio tonight and Saturday with cooler weather due Saturday. From a high of 80 degrees yesterday, the temperature dropped to 60 after the storm early yesterday evening. It had moved back to 7 5at noon today.

113 Officers, Leaders Marked for CIO Purge

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt today stepped in to organized labor's long-standing civil war with an admonition that "this is no time for labor organizations, international, national, or local to begin raiding one another to get additional membership, or for other reasons."

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Conservative leaders in the CIO, determined to eliminate the Communist and radical stigma, today marked down 113 officials and leaders of CIO unions, including Harry Bridges and Joseph Curran, for a purge.

Bridges, now fighting deportation proceedings, is president of the CIO's Longshoremen's and Warehouse Workers Union and Curran is head of the Maritime Union. The "right-wing" faction in the CIO accuses the men marked for the purge of either being Communists or sympathetic to radical elements, some of whom have been fomenting national defense strikes.

Others, on the "purge list" besides Bridges and Curran, include O. M. Orton, president of the International Woodworkers Union, who now is leading a west coast lumber strike in defiance of defense officials and CIO President Philip Murray, and Joseph Selly, president of the American Communications association, both CIO affiliates.

The drive is expected to be directed first against west coast CIO men alleged to hold Communist sympathies. Defense officials have been told, it is learned, that between 30 and 35 CIO organizers

PAYS HIGH PRICE

O. S. R. Inmate, Fugitive For 8 Hours, Gets 2 Years.

Eight hours of liberty yesterday cost Theodore Sexton, 22, of Hamilton county, two years incarceration at Mansfield reformatory.

Sexton, who was working on the hog farm at the reformatory, walked away yesterday at about 4 p. m. He was apprehended by Mansfield police on Longview avenue, west of Bowman street, shortly after midnight.

According to Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke, Sexton spent the night in the Mansfield jail and was returned to the reformatory this morning where he was given an extra time penalty of two years by the reformatory court.

He was received at the institution last Dec. 21, on a charge of attempted burglary, for a sentence of one to 15 years.

GET EARLY CALL

July 1 Registrants Due For Prompt Army Induction.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Major Garth N. Brainerd, chief of the national selective service field division, said today the men who register for draft service on July 1 probably will be inducted into service soon after their classification.

Brainerd, in an interview at state draft headquarters here, said the new registrants—chiefly men who have reached their 21st birthdays since last October—would be placed in the master draft list compiled for the first registration.

"There will be a separate lottery and establishment of new order numbers," he explained. The registration which will include an estimated 49,000 Ohioans was described by Major Brainerd as "very routine."

SOLDIERS FIGHT BIG BRUSH FIRE

Flames, Out of Control, Move Close to Army Camp.

SAN MIGUEL, Cal. —(INS)— Hundreds of soldiers from nearby Camp Roberts today battled a raging brush fire which got out of control and ate its way perilously close to the army camp.

State forestry officers directing the fight expressed fears that unless the blaze was checked it would spread "up and down the coast." This morning, the blaze was within a mile and a half of Camp Roberts and on a large front.

BLAME CAPTAIN

Board Reports on Cause of Atlanta Plane Crash.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The civil aeronautics board reported today that the probable cause of an Eastern Airlines plane crash near Atlanta, on Feb. 26, was "the failure of the captain in charge of the flight to exercise the proper degree of care by not checking his altimeters."

The crash resulted in the death of three crew members and five passengers. Eight passengers, including Eddie Rickenbacker, World war ace and president of EAL, were injured.

The board said that Flight Captain James A. Perry, who died in the crash, should have checked his altimeters while preparing to land at the Atlanta airport.

The victims were identified as Frank J. Turner and Howard Cannon, both of Kansas City.

The truck was westward bound to Chicago from Jersey City with a $20,000 load of soaps and cosmetics. The load was destroyed. Identification of the bodies, which were burned almost beyond recognition, was made by another truck driver, Wayne Tinney, also of Kansas City, who passed a few moments after the accident.

STUDY MEASURE

House Committee Divided on Property Seizure Bill.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A sharply-divided house military committee took up the senate's property seizure legislation, today but opposing factions expected that agreement on "some kind of bill" would be reached before nightfall.

Some committee members contended the revised proposal of Senator Donnally (D.-Texas) went too far. Others claimed that it had been "weakened" by amendments, before the senate finally passed it by a 67-to-7 vote yesterday.

While Chairman May (D.-Ky.) told reporters his committee would take the senate measure and "pluck it here and there," Rep. Thomason (D.-Tex.) an influential committee member, predicted that whatever committe revisions are made the legislation in the final analysis would be "somewhat akin" to its present character.

Unlucky? Well, Watch Out Today, Friday the 13th

Today is Friday the 13th and the unluckiest day of the year if popular superstition concerning the malignant nature of the day can be believed.

All manner of taboos vex today's activities. For instance, today of all days it is most important that the left sock or stocking be put on first. Otherwise it is bad luck.

In addition, any garment which may be donned in reverse, must be worn the rest of the day in that fashion. It's bad luck to change things.

Nor should any journey or business venture be started today. The reason is, according to the superstition, is that anything started today is unlikely to be finished.

Black cats and ladders, and overturned salt cellars, which are bad luck ordinarily, more than double their ill-effects today.

The only saving grace of the day seems to lie in the fact that it is the only combination of 13 and Friday which will occur in 1941.

Hold Flag Day 'Open House,' Guard Enlistment Tomorrow

Plans for an "open house" program at the State Armory on Ashland road tomorrow to celebrate Flag Day and to enlist men for the newly-formed state guard unit for Mansfield were announced today by Capt. Glen L. Bierly.

Bierly invited all residents to visit the armory from 1 to 5 p. m. during which time applicants for the unit will be enlisted. Approximately 45 men have already contacted Bierly to get information about the guard.

Following the open house session, the enlistees will be entertained at a stag get-acquainted party at the American Legion home. The Citizens' committee, which sponsors parties for selective service men, will meet tonight at the Chamber of Commerce rooms to complete plans for the party.

Mayor William J. Locke today asked all citizens to cooperate with the new guard unit officers in the open house program and also to display flags tomorrow for Flag Day.

The state guard captain also said that he had received orders today to procede with the training of the new guardsmen as soon as possible. Bierly stated that a letter from Col. Emerson O. Wolfe of Akron, commander of the Third

Urges Grads to Follow Three Principles to Attain Success

"Adhere to the principles of self-respect, self-restraint and Christian courage if you would be a success and an honor to your school," Rev. Joseph J. Janssen, rector of Sacred Heart Seminary at Shelby Settlement, told the 58 graduates at commencement ceremonies last night in St. Peter's church.

"Do not think your training has been completed," he told the class. "You will have to continue to train yourselves in these three principles if you keep yourself spotless in a wicked world."

The church auditorium was filled to capacity for the service which began with a processional by the graduates lead by the junior, sophomore and freshmen pupils.

Flower corsages gave a decorative touch to the snowy white caps and gowns worn by the girl graduates in contrast to the gray garb of the boys.

Admonishing the seniors to "march in united front with the church" and follow the religious teachings that have been a part of their daily school curriculum for 12 years, Rev. Janssen declared that "it is mastery of self that makes me free, not moral licentiousness."

Alluring to the crisis in the world today, Rev. Janssen asked,

ALLIES CLOSING IN ON BEIRUT IN MIDDLE EAST

Broaden Base For Expected Final Assault on Syria Capital, Damascus.

London ambassadors at Madrid. They were published today.

Reuters, British news agency, said it was understood in Cairo that the Allies had practically surrounded Damascus and that parleys between the opposing forces with view to avoiding bloodshed had delayed entry into the capital of Syria.

Damascus, with a population of nearly 200,000, reputedly is the world's oldest inhabited city.

Despite the British reports of imminent threat to the city, an Associated Press representative was able at 1:10 p. m., local time, to send a dispatch which told of government measures to assure the safety of French residents of Syria and Lebanon.

This dispatch said, however, that British and De Gaullist columns were only a few miles away.

Interned Frenchmen Join de Gaullists

CAIRO, Egypt. —(AP)— Officers and men from French warships interned in Alexandia harbor are joining the Free French in increasing numbers, observers said today, and Syrian developments may bring a definite showdown on the status of the fighting vessels demobilized last July after the French-German armistice.

The allied advance into Syria is known to have had strong repercussions among the crews remaining on the French battleship Lorraine, four cruisers, three destroyers and one submarine at Alexandria.

The warships, besides being stripped of their ammunition and oil supplies by agreement with the British, had their crews cut by almost 2,000 men who chose to return to France.

The warships have not moved from the harbor since last July, but there has been a steady stream of sailors from them to the Free French.

British Bombs Hit Ruhr, Rhine Areas

LONDON —(U.P.)— British long range bombing planes wrecked many industrial buildings and started a large number of fires during the night in the heaviest raid of the war on Germany's vital Ruhr-Rhine industrial area, an air ministry communique said today.

Other planes raided Brest, the French naval base at which the battered German 26,000 ton battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, and a 10,000 ton heavy cruiser believed to be the new Prinz Eugen, are sheltering.

Raids were made also on the Belgian invasion port of Antwerp and the great Dutch port of Rotterdam, oil storage center, the communique said.

Loss of seven British bombing planes was admitted. Eight had been lost in a great raid the night before on the Rhine-Ruhr area.

Soviets Call Troop Rumor 'Propaganda'

NEW YORK—(UP)—A broadcast by the official Russian news agency Tass heard in New York today said that rumors of German troop concentrations on the Russian border and Nazi demands upon the Soviet are "clumsily concocted propaganda of forces hostile to the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

London Watches Nazi, Soviet Indications

LONDON — (UP) — A report from Finland that an important statement on German-Finnish relations was imminent, and reports from Rumania that air raid precautions suddenly had been intensified, stirred interest today in the multiplying indications that Germany might be preparing to strike at Russia.

A United Press Helsinki dispatch said that the statement on German-Finnish relations was expected today.

The United Press Bucharest bureau reported that authorities had ordered a thorough inspection of all Bucharest buildings before Sunday to determine their resistance to aerial bombs, and that newspapers published long articles instructing the public on measures to take for their own protection in event of air raids Householders were advised that trenches were better shelter than cellars. They pointed out the lessons to be learned from the "recent catastrophe to another Balkan capital" Belgrade.

The Daily Telegraph said that if Germany attacked Russia the Finnish far northern port of Petsamo would be useful to German troops in the extreme northern part of Norway and to those now in Finland.

The newspaper said Germany had three picked divisions, or about 45,000 men, in Finland now and that German transports were moving into the Gulf of Bothnia between Finland and Sweden.

Exchange Notes On Syria Situation

LONDON — (AP) — The Vichy goevrnment informed the British government in a note of June 8 that it would "avoid taking any action to spread the conflict" in Syria and Lebanon, it was reported today.

The British reply, transmitted like the Vichy note through Madrid, expressed pleasure at this and declared there was no "intention of aggression."

The French note, however, warned Britain that the attack on the French-mandated territories risked "producing the greatest consequences."

The French reiterated their claim that all German personnel and equipment, save some wounded and some damaged planes, had been removed.

The British note replied tartly: "His majesty's government cannot be expected to enter into discussion with the government of Marshal Petain on the subject of meaning of collaboration."

The British declared they based their attitude in Syria on "facts."

CIO MARKS 113 FOR PURGE OF RED ELEMENTS

and leaders along the coast will be either fired or shorn of all power.

In addition, conservative leaders in the CIO are threatening to suspend charters of 30 industrial union councils in various states and cities unless Communists or their "fellow travelers" are ousted.

CIO Chieftain Murray has full power to revoke or suspend charters of industrial union councils. However, he is without power to remove heads of international unions, such as Bridges, Curran, Orton and Selly. In the case of these unions, the "right wing" faction in the CIO will support conservative elements among the rank and file, hoping that they will oust their presidents.

The fight between the two factions, which threatens to split the CIO wide open, was brought to a climax by the recent series of national defense strikes. Those urging the purge fear that the strikes might result in a wave of public resentment and laws that might cost the CIO all of the gains it has made and lead to its collapse.

Told to Return to Shipbuilding Jobs

(By Associated Press)

Resumption of full-speed production on $500,000,000 worth of defense shipbuilding in the San Francisco bay area depended today on the response of striking AFL machinists to telegraphed instructions from their international executive council in Washington to go back to their jobs in 11 shipyards.

Possibility the machinists might go to work Monday was voiced by Harry Hook, San Francisco business agent, who set a meeting Sunday to consider the council action.

Action on the biggest obstacle so far interposed to the all-out ship construction effort came last night in deference to a 'direct request" from President Roosevelt, the executive council announced.

At the same time the two remaining major threats to military airplane output were ended.

A strike scheduled for midnight at two Pittsburgh plants of the airplane propeller division of the Curtiss Wright company was called off at request of the defense mediation board.

And the AFL Machinists Union at the big Consolidated Aircraft corporation plant in San Diego announced ratification of new contract terms by a 9 to 1 vote, removing possibility of a walkout against Consair, which holds $700,000,000 in bomber orders for the army, navy and Britain.

Terms of the two-year contract were not announced immediately, but workers who voted said it provided an increase from 50 to 55 cents in the hourly minimum wage, a modified union shop and a military service clause. The union had asked a 60-cent minimum, with an automatic raise to 75 cents after six months' service.

A union official said Consolidated's 14,000 hourly-paid workers would benefit to the extent of $7,000,000 in the two years.

Newly approved senate curbs on defense production stoppages went to the house military affairs committee, meanwhile, and the house group, though divided on how drastically it should act, prophesied agreement on "some kind of bill" before nightfall today.

The senate late yesterday approved the Connally measure authorizing federal seizure of strategic plants if production was halted or threatened by a strike, lockout or "other cause," providing that mediation had failed or that either party or both had rejected mediation.

A drive to "clean out Communists" from the CIO United Automobile Workers organizing drive in the Pacific coast aircraft industry was proclaimed by Richard T. Frankensteen, CIO-UAW aircraft director, as normal production of ten warplanes daily neared at the army-occupied North American Aviation plant in Inglewood, Cal. Four thousand troops guarded the plant.

are seeking the nomination for council.

Democrats were certain of contests for council nominations in the Fourth and Sixth wards and for councilman-at-large. If Bushnell files this afternoon, there will be a contest for mayor on the ticket.

Due to an error, Lester Hunter, present councilman-at-large, was reported yesterday to have filed for council in the Fourth ward. Hunter filed for councilman-at-large again, leaving the Fourth ward race to Councilman Jacob Kutschall and Michael Mihalick.

In the Sixth ward, Arthur L. Croak, incumbent Democratic councilman, will be opposed by Stanley L. Wilburn. Four have filed for the three councilman-at-large nominations. They are the three present councilmen, Harry M. Emmons, Lester Hunter, and George L. Berg, and Herman Speas, a newcomer.

Other newcomers on the Democratic ticket were Richard H. Wynn, employe of the Richland Trust company, who filed for council in the Third ward, and W. F. Feigenbaum, seeking the party nomination for council in the First ward.

W. C. Mansfield filed today for the G. O. P. nomination for council president and Earle K. Troll was the Democratic candidate for city treasurer. Mansfield lost to Council President Howard G. Miller in the general election two years ago.

Others who had filed today for Shelby offices included James M. Herlihy for First ward council and David W. Cook for council in the Fourth ward.

"What is above all the troubles that beset our world today?"

"Is it not because this generation and previous generations went through a school system that had banished God and religious training from the class room?"

Such a system can have only one result in the final anaylsis and that is disaster," the speaker said. And the end of such a system, Rev. Janssen emphasized, "lies in a brutal totalitarianism that fights any expression of free Christian thought and ideals.

"Only when God and Christian religion take their place again in the nation, in every public institution and in privata life, will happiness return to the lives of the people," he said.

At the end of the address the graduates went to the altar rail to receive their diplomas from Msgr. R. C. Goebel who had given them their last talk as a class yesterday morning.

High school pupils replaced the choir for the musical part of the service directed by Sister Raphael with Raymond Baum at the organ. The Gregorian Te Deum, sung after the benediction, closed the ceremonies.

Seated with the speaker and Msgr. Goebel were Rev. Pfeiffer of Galion and the four curates of St. Peter's, Rev. John Flynn, Rev. Russell Gillig, Rev. Bertrand Shenk and Rev. James Dwyer.

Commencement day for the seniors began with an 8 a. m. mass followed by a banquet breakfast.

Ohio Credits Seen Headed for Two Billion Mark.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Bank loans in Ohio are headed for the "two billion" mark and there is a noticeable upswing in local credits to farmers and small business men, the Ohio Bankers association reported today.

Figures just completed for the last six months of 1940, the association reported, were: new loans, $511,000,000; renewals, $500,000,000; mortgage loans, $39,000,000; number of borrowers, 700,000.

allegations" that all aboard had been lost.

"The case of the Robin Moor may take even longer," he said. "Any report from a U-boat operating in that area may take weeks to reach Berlin."

Child Believed To Be McCullough Boy

A survivor of the sunken United States freighter, Robin Moor, today expressed admiration for the only child aboard the vessel, and he is believed to be the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McCullough, relatives of Mansfielders, who were aboard the ship.

The Robin Moor was sunk in the South Atlantic May 21. One lifeboat containing 11 men has been rescued. No word has been received of the fate of three other life boats with 35 other persons including the McCulloughs.

The survivor, quoted in an Associated Press dispatch, said there was no trace of panic as the ship's company, men, women and the child took to the lifeboats. He expressed admiration for the fearless youngster.

Mr. McCullough is the grandson of Mrs. Cora Miller of Bellville and a nephew of Dwight McCullough, 18 Helen avenue. He is also a grand-nephew of Mrs. G. W. Uhlich, Parkview street.

The McCulloughs had visited in Mansfield shortly before they sailed for South Africa where Mr. McCullough is employed by the Firestone Rubber company.

Extended Patrol Seen As Sinking Reply

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Immediate strengthening of American naval forces in the South Atlantic and the issuance of orders to the navy to resort to more drastic measures to protect American shipping on the high seas was seen in informed quarters today as this government's first likely answer to the sinking by the "Laughing Cow" submarine, believed to be German, of the American merchantman Robin Moor.

This move, it was said, is likely to be followed up by a blunt warning to Germany that the United States will not tolerate the sinking of American ships on the high seas.

Just how strong the warning will be depends upon President Roosevelt, official quarters said. The state department is compiling a report on the incident for the president. The report, it was learned, will state that the sinking of the ship unquestionably appears to be a flagrant violation of international law.

Apart from the question of whether or not the submarine had a right to sink a neutral ship on the high seas, the manner in which the Robin Moor was sunk is considered by government legal experts to be an indefensible violation of the rules of international law which govern naval warfare.

By setting the 46 passengers and crew of the Robin Moor adrift in the middle of the South Atlantic in lifeboats, the German submarine commander is considered to have flagrantly violated the law. His promise to wireless the position of the lifeboats, which does not appear to have been fulfilled, is not considered by the experts to have relieved him in the least of responsibility for violating the law.

tion board, adding "three thousand men and women can testify to that."

Hanchin said Martin had been scheduled to obtain final release from parole next Nov. 1. His record, according to the parole officer, included four years probation in 1926 for auto stealing, a year in a reformatory in 1930 for automobile theft, and revocation of his first parole in June, 1931, for shooting a man. He was sentenced to 10 to 25 years for armed holdup in October, 1931 and paroled Aug. 15, 1938.

Martin complained today to Hanchin that he is being "persecuted."

"Pressure is being brought on the parole board to get me back in the penitentiary," he said to the parole officer. "It's because I have cost the company $2,000,000 in wage raises and safety installations since I have been president of Local 55 of the die casters."

government for a full explanation.

The report was made by Walter J. Linthicum, U. S. consul at Pernambuco, Brazil, who spent almost five hours getting the accounts of the 11 known survivors after they reached the South American port aboard the rescue ship Osorio.

It was a direct and economical recital, but packed with drama.

It told how the plainly-marked American merchantman was stopped by the submarine in the South Atlantic on May 21, her identity confirmed, and the passengers given 30 minutes to abandon ship.

It described how she was torpedoed amidships.

Then it gave a final picture—the surfaced U-boat pumping some 30 odd shells into the sinking ship, and afterwards destroying floating wreckage with gunfire.

The submarine, survivors related, had a laughing cow, painted on the conning tower for insignia, and also the name Lorricke or Lorlekke. Her commander spoke poor English.

They were able to make such close observations because when the Robin Moor was halted at 6 a. m. that day, the submarine directed by blinker light signal that a boat be sent with papers.

A lifeboat in charge of the first mate rowed a mile and a half to the waiting U-boat, as ordered. There the mate personally apprised the commander of the Robin Moor's nationality and destination. He spent 10 minutes below deck, the report said, and when he reappeared the "abandoned ship" command was given. Then came the end.

Undersecretary of State Welles was asked whether this relatively brief episode on the high seas—the ship sank in 23 minutes—would constitute a "grave incident" in the eyes of the government.

He declined any official comment, however, pending receipt of full information and a careful study of all facts related to the war's first loss of an American ship by direct belligerent action. The detailed depositions of the survivors are on their way here from Brazil by special courier.

GUILD PRESENTS LIBRARY WITH NEW VOLUME

'Women of Bible' Gift From Guild; 'Men and Politics' Also New on Shelves.

Presented to Mansfield Public Library as a memorial to Mrs. Nancy Meese by the Rachel France Guild of the First Presbyterian church, H. V. Morton's "Women of the Bible," is now available to Library subscribers.

The book includes 24 biographical sketches of Bible characters by an author who is well known as a writer of travel books.

Another new title at the library is Louis Fischer's "Men and Politics." The correspondent for "The Nation" presents a sweeping chronicle of world events which pulls together the whole picture of men and events in Europe during the last 20 years.

CALL THE NEW WORLD by John Jennings is essentially the story of Peter Brooke, his adventures and his loves, but he moves against the stirring events of history. Battles around Washington, campaigns in Chile and Peru, negotiations in London, and finally President Monroe's world-changing messages are described with the effectiveness and vividness one would expect from the author of Next to Valour.

BLACK BAYOU by Idwal Jones is a tale of the moss-hung cypress marshes in Louisiana, and of Egremont, last of the great sugar plantations of the Delta. Action centers around the struggle between heavy-drinking Captain Tone, owner of the plantation, and the swamp people, muskrat-trappers who trespass where they will. Trouble begins in earnest when young Rishey, one of the natives, is hired to run Egremont with modern methods, in an effort to conquer both man and nature.

THE OTHER WORLDS edited by Phil Strong is a collection of the twenty-five best modern stories of free imagination—of the past decade—selected from more than 20,000 publishers and unpublished yarns. For readers who revel in the weird, fantastic, strange and startling.

OTHER FICTION: FIGURES IN A LANDSCAPE by Horgan; WHERE BEAUTY DWELLS by Loring; SINGING WIDOW by Johns.

Cleland Scott, author of LIONS ON TRUST, keeps lions as pets, and those who find his taste surprising are likely to modify their opinion considerably when they have read his book. He does not write only about the lion as a domestic animal, but tells of some thrilling experiences he has had while hunting lions. His study of their habits and character makes fascinating reading.

MARIAN ANDERSON is an intimate portrait of an outstanding singer of our day, written by her accompanist, Kosti Vehanen, who travelled with her altogether for nine years on European tours, to South America and throughout the United States.

THE ASTORS by Harvey O'Connor is the fabulous saga of America's self-made aristocrats whose story touches every phase of American history from pioneer fur-trading to the present crisis. One Astor carried his wealth to England, where the family has acquired patents of nobility, and a commanding position in the inner Tory circle which ruled Britannia until very recently.

OTHER NON-FICTION: AVIATION MECHANIC—Norcross & Quinn, HORIZONS UNLIMITED, Johnston; CULBERTSON'S NEW & COMPLETE SUMMARY; CONTRACT BRIDGE FOR BEGINNERS, CULBERTSON; NEW HANDBOOK OF THE HEAVENS, Bernard and others; AMERICA IN CONTEMPORARY FICTION, Boynton; ARENA, Flanagan; DIPLOMAT BETWEEN WARS by Wilson; NINE DAYS WONDER by Masefield; A MAN AROSE by Roberts.

Elevation of Harlan Fiske Stone by President Roosevelt from associate justice of the United States supreme court to chief justice of the United States has placed in the nation's top judicial post a man who has been on the high bench 16 years. 140 GIRLS FROLIC TONIGHT IN Y. W. C. A. DAY CAMP FEATURE

Climaxing the first week of Y. W. C. A. summer day camp a frolic for the 140 girls enrolled in camp will be held tonight at the Y. W. C. A. building, Miss Norma Sheer, camp director, announced.

This frolic and the two to follow on succeeding Fridays will provide the campers opportunity to participate in recreation as a unit after being scattered throughout the week for activities in the various parks and at the Senior high school swimming pool.

Attendance at the camp classes has been holding right to 140 throughout the week, Miss Sheer said, and additional "campers" are expected to join next week following dismissal of St. Peter's school.

Tennis, badminton, handicraft and the combined Bible and dramatics course filled today's schedule.

Yesterday's swimming classes heard Bernard C. Hardy, first aid and water safety director of the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross, speak at the high school.

It was intended to open swimming courses yesterday but as the pool was not ready, the hour was devoted to discussing swimming and water safety with Hardy.

Junior and Senior girls initiated their outdoor cooking class at Middle park yesterday under the direction of Mrs. John Salyer.

New additions to the coaching staff includes Miss Janet Kelly, archery, and Mrs. L. N. Bryant, first aid.

must be filed with the librarian for credit and two pupils are now running neck and neck for the honor of being the first to complete their list.

Jeannine Skelton, seventh grade and Ralph Bonanta, fourth grade, have already read five books and submitted reports, according to the bull's-eye being used by the Library to denote the progress.

INDIAN STAR

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—(U.P.)—There was a liberal sprinkling of European stars among performers of Chicago's San Carlo Opera company when it visited Salt Lake City recently—but the main attraction to Salt Lakers was comely Mobley Lushanya, full-blooded Indian girl who is the only one on the opera stage.

Miss Lushanya, sole member of her race to achieve musical distinction, comes from the Chickasaw tribe of Oklahoma. She studied in Europe's music centers several years before launching her professional singing career.

TAX CONTINUES UPWARD SWING

Sales Revenue Collections Up 20 Per Cent Over Last Year's Receipts.

A substantial gain in virtually every line of retail business in Richland county boosted the county's sales tax receipts for the first five months of the year to 20 percent above collections for the corresponding months of 1940.

The county's receipts for the period amounted to $283,654 for a gain of $48,604 over the 1940 figures, State Treasurer Don Ebright reported.

Collections for the final week of May totaled $15,691, or $3,408 more than the sales tax "take" for the last week of May, 1940.

Sales tax income over the state continues to set new marks and already it is $4,500,000 ahead of the first five months of last year, the treasurer's report showed. Collections so far total $23,430,384.

PRIZE RECORDS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (U.P.) — Posterity will not lack records of Harvard men. Everything from their senior theses to football tickets, menus and photographs are stored in the vaults of the university library.

Director Clifford K. Shipton says the Harvardiana collection is invaluable to insurance companies, government agencies, social historians and biographers. He says Harvard prefers to treasure records of its most obscure sons and would rather have "student correspondence and diaries than John Adams or F. D. Roosevelt autographs."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1941

Isolationists are what practical Americans would like to be if it were possible.

Well, we have a chicken in every pot and a car in every garage, and yet we're not secure and happy.

A True American

THE judge was questioning a group of aliens who were about to become citizens. One of them, Goldie Kramer, had studied long and hard, learning many things about the Constitution, congress, the supreme court, and all the rest. She was afraid of the examination, but got through it all right. Then the judge put one more question.

"Do you love this country?" he asked. And Goldie suddenly was not afraid. She smiled happily. "Oh, Judge, what a question! Do I love it? Who wouldn't love such a country? Forty years I been here. My oldest boy died in France. My grandson will fly an airplane soon for the army. Judge, even if you gave me some other countries, gave them to me free—just like that—I wouldn't take them. But America, judge—America is for me—and me, I'm for America!"

Goldie's story is told in "Common Ground," a quarterly published to tell Americans about each other and to discover for all the foundation of the nation's unity and greatness. There are many Goldies in this country today, of many different Old World backgrounds. But they are "for America" with no reservations. Older Americans, of so-called "native stock," have nothing to fear from such adopted citizens who know, ungrammatically but deeply and truly, what America has been and should continue to be.

Training Camp Readers

THE YOUNG MEN at Scott Field, Ill., are said to have serious reading tastes, at least in the matter of magazines. Citizens of neighboring towns give thousands of magazines to the post for use of the soldiers. In addition, the men spend $750 a month at post exchanges for magazines they buy themselves.

The most-bought and most-used magazines, a survey shows, are those specializing in radio, aviation and other technical subjects.

The lads are not very different from young fellows elsewhere, however. Second on the list come the magazines that go in for glamor girls. After that, no doubt, come detective stories, westerns, and general fiction.

Anyhow, this suggests something that a lot of people, not necessarily living near military camps or naval bases, can do for the men in the defense forces. Give them books. Subscribe to good magazines for them, finding out first what is in demand and what they're most eager to have. Send them their home-town newspaper.

Sailors Wanted By Uncle Sam

WE SEEM to be building, at the same time, a hemispheric army and a two-ocean navy, and of the two the navy has a big start. But in the matter of recruits the army has the advantage. It gets the men it wants by drafting them. The navy relies on volunteers.

And just now the navy needs 35,000 recruits. Here's plenty of scope for young fellows with a taste for salt water and adventure. Also for fellows who want to do something for their country.

Many ships are being taken over or newly built, and every one needs a crew the moment it's ready. There is likely to be more life, action and variety in this branch of defense than in the army. There should be plenty of applicants as the word gets around. If information is not available locally, doubtless the navy department at Washington would answer inquiries.

More People, More Safety

THERE are more people to the acre or square mile in little Rhode Island than in any of the other states. Yet Rhode Island has the lowest accident rate of all. Nevada, on the other hand, with 800 acres for every inhabitant, has four times as many fatal accidents as its little sister in New England.

Rhode Islanders, no doubt, achieve their high degree of safety by the simple process of recognizing the perils of heavy traffic on congested highways and taking greater precautions to avoid them. Neither density of population, nor climate, nor amount of travel may be credited for such a safety record. Only one thing is truly effective, and that is normal and sensible observance of safety practices.

"SUPER-LUBRICANT"

Mitchell's Tent-Mate Speaks

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Into the annals of congress the other day was written one of those simple and touching stories of how long and enduring can be a friendship between "war buddies."

It has to do with the memory and the record of the late Brig. Gen. William L. "Billy" Mitchell, who suffered the humiliation of being court-martialed and relieved of his army command for four years after he shouted long and loud and violently that wars of the future would be fought in the air and that the United States army was negligent in not developing this branch of the service. Head down, like an angry bull, and oblivious to consequences, General Mitchell snorted and pawed out his charges and claims in interviews, articles and lectures.

The result was that he was drummed out of the army, for a time at least, for insubordination and breach of discipline. That's history and it's also history now that "Billy" Mitchell's name has bobbed up more often in the last year or so than that of any of the major or minor prophets who predicted the tides of modern warfare, for it appears now that he was right.

After 43 Years.

It bobbed up again the other day in congress when Rep. Stephen Bolles of Wisconsin called to the attention of the House a resolution which Assemblyman Edward F. Hillker of Racine had laid before the state legislature. The resolution, after 10 "whereases" that recited the major events by which Mitchell distinguished himself and finally brought himself into disfavor, ended with this:

"Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), that the Wisconsin Legislature respectfully petition the congress of the United States to take such official action as may be necessary to clear the name of this soldier and patriot (Brig. Gen. William L. Mitchell) to the end that he who stood his ground, though persecuted, may be completely and forever cleared."

Behind all this is a story that started 43 years ago in Milwaukee, Wis., at Camp Harvey. Two lads presented themselves for enlistment as buck privates in the Spanish American war. They both were accepted and when they reached the camp at Jacksonville, Fla., Pvts. William L. Mitchell and Edward F. Hilker were assigned within an arm's length of each other, ate the same chow and shared toils, troubles and pleasures throughout the war.

When it was over, "Billy" Mitchell went on to become a hero of the World war, a pioneer for air power, a brigadier general and finally an officer in disgrace. "Ed" Hilker kept back to Wisconsin and to a career in which, more than 40 years after, he could initiate a move to clear the name of his old tentmate.

Heat-Proof Candy.

A footnote on food: Soldiers go for chocolate bars—but not the kind the army was issuing as an emergency ration—and as a result the army's official chocolate bar now is undergoing its second metamorphosis. In the first place, this new emergency ration introduced a year or so ago was too good. The brass hats discovered that the men ate them before there was even a limited emergency. They fixed that by making them not so good. They put in a little secret something or other that made it necessary for a man to get into at least a state of second degree hunger before he would start nibbling on his chocolate bar. That put a stop to premature eating.

Then came summer in the South and field maneuvers under blistering sun and the emergency ration caused a new uproar. It melted. But the army's clever that way. No sooner had the trouble developed than out came a heat-resistant chocolate bar. It has oat flour and other things in it to keep it from going gooey. It also has vitamins. By such dietetic advancements of modern warfare even the "lost patalions" of the future will be getting their vitamins.

Listen World!

Meet Your Ghost!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEIR marriage was going to pieces. The bond that had seemed so close during courtship was slipping, leaving them both terribly alone. What had happened?

Here was the girl he had adored—charming and friendly. Surely he knew this girl's every thought. Or did he? Suddenly she had become a stranger, distrustful and reserved. He could cope with the woman he had married, but he couldn't "handle the ghosts within her." He could not see them nor could she. "Yet they rose out of the past. They were the spectres at the feast."

"The ghosts within her," that's a startling phrase, isn't it? I've lifted it from a remarkable new book called "Personal Problems of Everyday Life" by two famous American psychologists, Doctors Lee Edward Travis, professor of psychology, University of Southern California, and Dorothy Walter Baruch, professor of education, Broadoaks School of Education of Whittier college at Pasadena.

Here's a book that really makes sense for the plain citizen and hits him where he lives. For the problems discussed are those that come to us all, though we may have never before dared to face them frankly. That frankness may come as a surprise to many of us, perhaps as a shock. You're not going to agree with it all. I don't, much as I admire the book. But it's good for what ails us all, even though some of its revelations are hardly flattering and would have given Aunt Tabitha pink fits.

But getting back to those ghosts. We all have them. Ghosts of envy and fear, disgust, disappointment and thwarted desires whose very beginnings we have forgotten. Ghosts whose shapes we ourselves have never faced . . . and yet they stalk with us through life, influencing our every act or thought for good or evil. The tragedy that overtakes us at fifty may well spring from the baby heart-break or rebellion we suffered at five.

Have you ever realized how much of your own life was determined in those first few years of babyhood? That tantrum you flew into this morning . . . that constant, gnawing sense of your own deficiencies . . . what's the connection between them and your old habit of biting your nails or your reaction to your baby brother's birth? Plenty! And you'd be infinitely happier and more successful if you knew the tie-up.

Here's your opportunity to discover it; your chance to meet YOUR GHOST. Here, too, is a friendly warning. After you've had a look-see, don't jump to the conclusion that you're just a sum total of your Yesterdays, because you're not.

There's no Ghost, however tough, that Faith, Knowledge and Spunk can't banish, if you really want to be free—

BUT YOU'VE "GOTTA WANNA!"

TODAY IN HISTORY

June 13—France declared war against England in aid of the American colonies on June 13, 1778. Lord Cornwallis and his army surrendered at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 1781. It was 140 years later that the United States repaid the debt.

Ouster of Aviation Union Heads To Start Purge of Reds In CIO

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The ouster of Wyndham Mortimer and four other leftist leaders of the outlaw North American Aviation strike is no mere local purge, but the opening gun in a showdown struggle to clean out red leadership throughout the CIO.

This fight may split the organization from top to bottom, since the Kommie element is strongly entrenched in certain unions. What finally happens depends chiefly on John L. Lewis.

The bushy-browed miner chief permits no communists in his own outfit, has ruthlessly stamped on their attempts to capture key places. But when CIO president, he surrounded himself with fellow-travelers, and this year has played ball with them in his political and anti-defense maneuvers.

If Lewis raised his voice against the reds they would be driven out of power in 30 days. But he has never said a word, and the leftists openly lean on his name and power in the CIO. This has acted as a strong restraint on anti-red leaders, who would have launched a purge long ago but for fear of John L.

The wraps are off now, however, and the strictly trade union forces are determined to clean house regardless of Lewis. If he sides with the leftists, there will be a battle royal that will make labor history. If he keeps hands off, the fight will take some time, but the CIO will remain intact. If he should blast the reds, the purge will be painless.

Offensive Under Way.

Besides the aviation purge, similar offensives already are under way in the Newspaper Guild and the Woodworkers.

L. C. Orton, lumbermen's head who thumbed his nose at a Mediation Board strike settlement approved by Phil Murray, is headed for an ouster showdown. Murray has given the signal, and union machinery already is in motion behind the scenes.

The Newspaper Guild struggle reaches a climax at its annual convention this month in Detroit, when a fight will be made to eliminate the clique of leftists holding key national offices.

Chiefly from New York, this faction has followed a straight communist "party line" policy in opposing defense and anti-Axis measures. Recently, without the authorization of rank-and-file newsmen, they used Guild funds to put out an elaborate "report" defending themselves.

The Washington Guild, one of the anti-red leaders, plans to force a test at Detroit by offering a resolution endorsing the President's action in breaking the outlaw North American Aviation strike. Since the leftists have violently denounced this, they'll have to show their hand.

Other CIO unions due for housecleanings are the Die Casting Workers and the Electrical Workers. Edward T. Cheyfitz, national secretary of the Die Casters, who staged an outlaw strike at the Cleveland plant of the Aluminum Corporation, is a leftist who once spent a year in Russia.

Corn Gasoline.

The famous "kick" in corn liquor is to be harnessed for defense. However, Dry groups don't need to worry. It's to be utilized for motor, not body fuel.

Experiments will begin soon at a department of agriculture chemical laboratory in Peoria, Ill., to determine if the alcohol made from corn mash is suitable for mixing with gasoline. Idea is (1) to find a blend that will increase the octane rating of low-grade gas; (2) conserve 10 per cent or more of the gasoline used by civilians; (3) provide a new use for the corn surplus.

Note—Wags in the Bureau of Chemistry already have coined a trade name for corn gasoline—"Mountain Dew."

Hull and Winant.

In making his various reports on the British situation, Ambassador Winant carefully saved his really confidential information for the president. To other officials he gave out little more than they could read in the papers.

In his report to the state department, for instance, he said almost nothing. His session with Cordell Hull reminded listeners of two gentlemen each trying to impress the other with his wisdom but revealing almost nothing.

Secretary Hull said what he thought about Winston Churchill, and Ambassador Winant chimed in with: "And Mr. Churchill said to me"—and so on.

Finally the discussion got down to the fine points of international law and whether the United States had violated it. Here the center of the stage was held by Green Hackworth, cherub-faced legal adviser, who got out his law books and quoted various paragraphs, sections and sub-sections.

"You see, Mr. Secretary," he said, "we are violating international law when we take British vessels into our ports to be repaired. Here is the citation. It may not be in violation of the Neutrality act, but the Neutrality act is a unilateral declaration to which Germany is not a party. And anytime she wants to she can retaliate against us."

Nobody raised the point that a considerable number of British ships already were in our navy yards and it was a little late to be talking theory of international law. Nor did anyone raise the point that Hitler himself had been the chief scrapper of all there is left of international law.

In this vein the meeting droned on.

Hull the Mountaineer.

Secretary Hull was very different when he summoned French Ambassador Henry-Haye to his hotel and romped all over him for resisting the British in Syria.

Romping over the Vichy ambassador is something which Mr. Hull seems to enjoy and he does it well. He reminded M. Henri-Haye that Syria was a mandated territory entrusted to France by the League of Nations, and that France had withdrawn from the league.

"Therefore," Mr. Hull said, "you have no business there and no right to resist the British."

Hull also compared the Syrian episode to the French surrender of Indo-China to Japan. With far better forces in French Indo-China, he said, France offered no opposition to the Japanese. Therefore, France could have pleaded a similar inability to fight in Syria.

"Instead you played into the hands of Germany," he concluded, "and contradicted all the assurances you have given me."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The years hurry by, Melora. . . . They must be streamlined, they go so fast. . . . They make you stop and think. . . . You walk along Broadway, and you look up at a sign that says "Blood and Sand." . . . That goes back a long way, clear back to Valentino. . . . But they do things different today, and in technicolor. . . . The ushers are having trouble with the queues that stream back through 50th street for two hundred yards . . . "Stay in line," they yell, "stay in line, chum."

You see bright, gawdy cut-out pictures of Tyrone Power now, where it used to be Valentino. . . . And those two young women who have just climbed out of a cab see them too. . . . They stop and look at the pictures, and at the words on the marquee a long time. . . . Then they look at each other. . . . They think back, too, a long time. . . . Back to Valentino. . . . Because they knew Valentino, and worked with him. . . . Because their names are Lila Lee and Nita Naldi.

Lila Lee and Nita Naldi were in the original "Blood and Sand." . . . Oh, years ago. . . . Lila played the part of the good little girl, and Nita was the bad girl. . . . Remember? . . . They remember. . . . That was a long time ago. . . . It was a good time, but it is gone now, and Valentino is dead and a generation, almost, has passed on, and the movies have learned how to talk and to cast their stories in different colors, natural colors.

IT MUST seem strange to Lila Lee and Nita Naldi to come upon that marquee legend after so many years of prohibition and depression and repeal and New Deal and wars and alternate periods of success and uncertainty.

They look at the pictures of Tyrone Power a long time, and probably they see Valentino in his place, Valentino with his slave bracelet and his brooding eyes and his quick, impetuous wit. Then they move on, but not inside. Where? . . . Well, shopping, or to dinner—it's pretty early to go to work yet. . . . But in a couple of hours they'll go to that great cave in the basement of the Paramount hotel, known as the Diamond Horseshoe, and to work. . . . Billy Rose has leading assignments for these girls in his newest Horseshoe show.

MISS LEE, now probably 35, has been in show business since she was five. . . . Her real name is Augusta Appel. . . . She began her career with Gus Edwards, the old "star" maker, who discovered Eddie Cantor, and George Jessel, and even Walter Winchell. . . . When she became a picture player she appeared with Wallace Reid—remember? And she says, "I was the good girl then too, I've always been the good girl—good and abused."

As for Miss Naldi—the "bad" girl—John Barrymore once called her "The Dumb Duse." . . . Her real name is Jiannina Maria Theresa, but she grabbed the Nita Naldi early because it was much the better show name. . . . Her father, an Italian, was in the diplomatic service, and she was born at Washington, D. C.

It was "passion" they always built around her in the movies. . . . "I had to play 'Passion,' she says, "in one form or another. . . . Virtue, pride, vice, lust, envy, jealousy. . . . I've had to play them all." . . . Indeed, even now when Morris Guest presents her to his friends he introduces her at "Miss Nita Naldi—my passion." Of Valentino she says, "He was a darling—sweet, kind, generous."

Nita would probably still be in Spain if the war hadn't driven her home. . . . Most of the last 13 years have been spent abroad. She went to Europe for a three-week honeymoon—and it was 13 years before she got back.

A Farmer's Diary

Taking a Trip

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SOMETIMES I take up a road map that marks the great, long highways of our land and dream of the many sights and sounds I would enjoy, if I could get away.

I would see rich corn fields that stretched for miles across the dark fertile plain, vast long lines of wheat with burdened heads still and golden for the harvest. The very atmosphere is ripe with wheat. And there the giant combines go, hitched to restless tractors—circling round and round the almost endless stretch of grain.

And I would look upon great streams flowing slowly through the level land or inland lakes where I might fish and camp along the cool green banks. In the northern wilds, I would hear the beaver splash with his broad flat tail upon the glassy water at sundown and watch in the long afterglow, his furry form like a miniature boat, go pushing through the placid waters while in his wake long angling lines of ripples, parallel, extend from his moving body to the shore. And from some far off hill the hungry wolf would call, in terrifying cries, and break the quiet of the peaceful evening.

I would climb the mountain famed for height and beauty and look with pride down on the panorama stretching from its base. What I would carry from such a vantage point would be mine—a strong and gently sustaining memory.

I would watch at evening along the countryside for the first home light—a single far off gleam from some farmhouse nestled in the lap of night, whose occupants did not know I passed that way. I would listen to the sounds of cattle in barnyards, the song of night birds in the gathering dusk, the rapid flit of bats about great lawn trees, and best of all, the happy shouts of children at their play. I would hear the chickets chirping at my feet, would catch the perfume of oldtime familiar flowers.

With such thoughts as these, it would not be difficult to find my way back home. Gone would be the wrinkled thumb marked road map—except to mark and recall the places I had been. "My heart is turning home again, and there I long to be." For here is rest and peace and the sights and sounds I love . . . where I am not a stranger anymore. Here, "Surely there is peace in sky and ground—O heart, if we but search it can be found."

Let's Look Around

Smallest Capital and 'Ghost City'

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

CARSON CITY, Nevada—Today has been devoted to looking up things and places that are "unusual," or that differ in some way from ordinary attractions.

Crossing the border into Nevada we find the Callfornia influence still at work, in the matter of superlatives, and Carson City makes the proud boast of being "the smallest state capital," with a population somewhat under 2,000, and employment and income mainly from public payrolls.

A small, but well designed capitol building occupies a central square with customary park surroundings, and the supreme court building and county court house are just across the street.

An old resident volunteered the information that there is considerable new building this year and that "Carson City has the finest climate in the world"—again the California influence.

* * * *

BUT it was in coming to Carson City from Sacramento that we ran across one of those small towns in which an interesting story is very likely to pop out—if you don't hurry through too fast.

Now plodding along under the name of "Placerville," (pronounced with a short a) this village turns out to be historic old "Hangtown," of the pony express days.

Hangtown started as a mining camp in 1848 and quickly became notorious as a rendezvous of thieves who stole gold and "grub" from the miners.

A group of vigilantes was formed and as a start-off of frontier justice, three of the culprits were captured, tried by a "citizens court" and promptly hanged from the limb of a large oak tree, the location of which is now marked by a plaque on Main street, which was then quite appropriately designated as "Shirt-tail Bend."

From then on, this pony express station became known as "Hangtown," and hangings were so frequent for awhile that the community finally took on a semblance of good behavior. The same tree was used for each of these informal executions, and the old bell which summoned the populace to "Hangman's Tree" is still exhibited.

Here also, our Indiana readers will be interested in learning, John M. Studebaker opened a small blacksmith shop to make wheelbarrows for the miners and thus laid the foundation for later building of wagons—which finally developed into the large automobile industry at South Bend, Ind.

* * * *

ALSO on the way here from Sacramento we were privileged to drive for many miles along Lake Tahoe, the resort attraction of this entire region and rightfully claimed to be among the most beautiful lakes in the world. For many miles around, when a trip to "the lake" is mentioned, reference is to Lake Tahoe.

The lake is twenty miles long and twelve miles wide, with a good highway making a 60-mile drive around it an enjoyable experience. At an elevation of more than 6,000 feet, Lake Tahoe is surrounded by lofty snow-crowned mountain peaks on all sides, presenting a scene of startling beauty.

* * * *

ADVICE on every hand was "Don't miss seeing Virginia City," which is reached by a short side trip from Carson City—so we journeyed to a Nevada town, the appearance of which is as remote from a modern city as can be imagined.

Virginia City is now a "ghost town" if there ever was one, but with reminders of its former grandeur still evident in its crumbling ruins.

Here was the center of activities after discovery of the famous Comstock Lode, in 1859, from which the output was four hundred millions in gold and five hundred millions in silver, much of which went toward financing the Civil war.

Residents of Virginia City claim that the motion picture by that name doesn't do the town justice. Mark Twain and Bret Harte did their first writing as reporters on the Virginia City Enterprise, Nevada's first newspaper.

COUNTY RELIEF LOAD DROPS FOR FOURTH MONTH

Expenditures For May Cut $2,123 Over Corresponding Month, Finney Says.

For the fourth successive month, relief costs for Mansfield and Richland county during the month of May showed a sizeable decrease.

J. V. Finney, relief director, announced today that only $7,066.27 was spent during May, $2,123.96 less than in April.

May's expenditures had been $1,848.06 lower than March. Since the beginning of February, relief costs have been reduced more than $5,000, according to Finney.

The case load for both districts dropped 110 cases, making a total of 290 cases including 964 persons receiving relief during May. Of the cases, 120 were in the county and 170 in the city.

The county area paid out $1,664.91 for relief costs while the city expended $2.511.44. Medical services for both areas totalled $1,240.04, the city paying out $651.64.

Direct and work relief was extended to a total of 470 persons in the 120 county cases after adding 13 cases and closing 46. The city gave direct and work relief to 494 persons in 170 cases after adding 16 and closing 84 cases.

Total administrative and non-administrative expenses for the office totalled $1,630.31 with $836.66 being paid for the former.

Approximately 322 persons are working on WPA projects and 60 persons are awaiting assignment. Twenty-four persons were certified for the WPA during the month and one youth for NYA. Of the 103 persons assigned to projects during the month, 17 failed to report and one person was rejected.

The WPA housekeeping aid project cared for 105 families during the month including 314 persons. Seventy workers spent 971 hours in training and 6,592 hours in homes of indigent persons.

Thirty-five persons employed on the WPA sewing project turned out 1,138 garments during the month at an estimated cost of $562.20. More than 17 tons of surplus commodities were distributed to needy families.

STATE EXECUTES TWO MURDERERS

Gangsters Suspected of 32 Killings Pay Penalty at Sing Sing.

(By United Press)

OSSINING, N. Y. — It took the state nine minutes last night to execute two men suspected of 32 murders during 16 years of crime.

The killers who died in Sing Sing prison's electric chair were Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss, 31, and Martin (Buggsy) Goldstein, 36, the high executioneers for Murder, Inc., a Brooklyn mob which authorities have blamed for more than 80 slayings throughout the country. The mob hired out on a contract basis to kill for rival gangs, and also killed many of its own members who got friendly with the police.

Strauss and Goldstein were the first members of the mob to die legally. Two more, Harry (Happy) Maione and Frank (The Dasher) Abbandando, are in Sing Sing awaiting execution.

The state convicted Strauss and Goldstein of only one murder—that of Irving (Puggy) Feinstein, a small-time Brooklyn bookie suspect by the mob of chiseling in on its activities. Strauss and Goldstein, on Labor day, 1939, took Feinstein to the home of Abe (Kid Twist) Reles, strangled him, then took his body to a vavant lot and burned it. Then they went out for a lobster dinner.

Things Went Buzzing Around Till Ohio Lady Took Vendol

Constipation Also Made Her Bilious, Spots Danced Before Eyes, Tongue Coated. Bad Taste In Mouth. Quite Different Now, She Says.

"When I get constipated I often feel symptoms of dizziness so bad that things seem to be spinning about me and when I lie down sometimes the bed feels like it is going round and round," says Mrs. Pearl Smothers, living at Galion, Ohio.

"I also notice when I'm constipated symptoms like biliousness, spots dancing before my eyes, awakening with headaches, coated tongue, bad taste in my mouth, and so tired and draggy that seems I hadn't been to sleep, due to constipation

"I believe the very first dose of Vendol helped me and I find it gives the best, most complete laxative action and brings the temporary relief from constipation which I enjoy so much. When I'm not constipated I never have any symptoms like dizziness, spots, headaches, coated tongue, of other troubles like these due to constipation

"If anyone reading this feels like I did, I can advise him to try vendol without delay."

MRS. PEARL SMOTHERS

The quick and positive action of Vendol proves a surprise to many, and having suffered so long they can hardly realize that this great medicine with a 17-year reputation of helping people can really be so good. But, try Vendol and see for yourself. All druggists sell it, and the larger bottles save you money. Especially recommended here by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth streets; Weinberger's, Leed's, and Muir's Drug Stores.

CITY FINISHES WATER LINE JOB

WPA Workmen Start Repair of Streets Torn Up During Construction Period.

The extension of Mansfield's water supply system to new sections of the city neared completion today as WPA workmen on the Park avenue east-Wayne street waterline project repaired the streets torn up during the water line construction work.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that this new line was the final link in the city's circuitous water system, giving fire protection to all parts of the city.

City workers are still regulating a new pressure-regulating valve installed at Jeannette avenue to standardize the feed into the new line. Crafton said that the valve would enable the maintenance of suficient pressure to combat fires in the industrial section of the city.

Water has been turned into the new lines and workers are merely brushing up, according to Crafton. Te estimated that the project would be finished up this week. Grass seed has been planted on lawns torn up both on the Wayne street and the Lexington avenue project which was completed earlier this summer.

COUNTY TURNS DOWN CITY ON COST OF SEWER

Board Declines To Shoulder Major Part of Cost of McPherson Project.

Efforts by city council to have Richland county- commissioners assume the major part of the cost of constructing a storm sewer between McPherson and Reed streets to prevent seasonal flooding of basements and properties apparently had met with failure today.

J. J. Kutschall, Fourth ward councilman, said that the commissioners had refused to pay the greater part of the cost. The councilman stated that the flooding resulting from the filling of a small creek between the two streets during high water. The creek is fed by streams coming from outside the city.

Kutschall asked Councilman George Kyle, chairman of council's sewer committee to present the city's case at the meeting, because residents of his ward have suffered damages during high water. The commissioners informed the councilmen that they could only contribute $1,000 towards the cost of the project. Both county and city engineers estimated that the cost of the project would be about $6,600.

Kyle said that he believed the county should put up the $5,600 and the city $1,000 because the water course originates in the county and should therefore be controlled by it.

City Engineer W. C. Statler is preparing an estimate of the lowest possible cost for other sewer projects in the city and will inform Kyle of the amount which might be diverted for use in constructing the needed storm sewer.

Kutschall said that he believed enough could be raised by paring the cost of other projects but that it might be necessary to ask council for additional funds.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

A career story for girls and one for boys feature the new books for children at Mansfield Public Library this week. One relates the experiences of a young girl whose ambition was to be a writer, while the other tells of the hazards and trials of being a fireman.

ROXANA RAMPANT by Laura Benet—Roxana Rampant, a hope-to-be-writer, gets a position as assistant to a literary editor, who suggests she give up the desire to write poetry and try writing a book about her baby sister. How Roxana blossoms from a badly dressed girl with an armful of poems to sell, to a poised young lady with a romance makes this story interesting to all girls. Many of the incidents are taken actually from the author's own experiences.

SMOKE EATER by Howard Brier—"It was smoke that finally brought Stan out of his troubled sleep." Lieutenant Stan Parker was a modern fireman—a fireman who fought fires with chemicals, even though not all members of the force agreed with his method. In spite of this, Stan found the fireman's life of constant daring and danger an exciting challenge. But the bitter disgrace of letting the phantom "Orchid," a mysterious firebug slip from his grasp almost caused him to give up. How Stan discovered the identity of the firebug and won his way back to recognition makes a thrilling climax to an exciting story.

More than 39,000,000 persons passed through New York's Grand Central station as railroad passengers in 1940.

JUDGE REVOKES PAROLES OF 2 RICHLAND MEN

Butler Man Sentenced To One to Five Years In Ohio Pen; Another Goes to O. S. R.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today revoked the probations of two Richland countians and sentenced one to the Ohio penitentiary and the other to the Mansfield reformatory.

Sam Anderson, 59, Butler, who had been on probation after pleading guilty to a grand jury indictment for blackmail, was sentenced to the penitentiary for one to five years.

Taken into custody at Butler several days ago by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, Anderson was cited for contributing to the delinquency of small boys.

Found guilty of violating his probation, Robert Dudte, 19, of 298 West Sixth street, was sentenced to the reformatory for one to 15 years on a breaking and entering indictment.

Dudte won proabtion in March, 1940, as a first offender. His probation was extended less than a month ago when he was brought into court for a minor infraction of the probation rules.

He was cited today for failing to provide for his family and frequenting places Judge Huston warned him to avoid

Anderson was indicted about two years ago by the county grand jury after he allegedly attempted to extort "protection" money from two Richland county youths he contended had attacked and robbed him. Authorities said Anderson told the youths he would not prosecute them if they paid him the small amount he requested.

MISS LOUISE SEYBOLD WILL WED LIEUT. LISLE

Friends Learn of Coming Marriage on July 13 at a Formal Ceremony at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church When Mary Markley Society Meets.

FRIENDS of Miss Louise Seybold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Seybold. 524 South Main street, were surprised on Thursday evening to learn of her coming marriage to Lieut Harvey C. Lisle of Washington, D. C., and Mansfield. The wedding will be an open church service at the St. Paul Lutheran church on July 13 at 4 p. m. Lieut. Lisle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lisle, 238 Blymyer avenue.

Announcement was made at the June meeting of the Mary Markley society of the St. Paul's Lutheran church when Mrs. Herman L. Gilbert, 94 West Third street, entertained at her home. Miss Seybold presided for the business session and Mrs. Russell Hawk presented the topic, "A Stranger and Ye Took Me In." Following the lesson the group played progressive hearts with prizes being won by Mrs. Hawk and Miss Helen Boyer. Mrs. J. Woodrow Seitz, who is leaving with her husband the first of July for their new home in Baltimore, Md., was honored by the group with a farewell gift.

When refreshments were served at the close of the evening the guests learned of the coming nuptials when a wedding cake was served decorated with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Former Resident to Appear

One of southern Ohio's juvenile stars of the saddle, nine-year-old Connie Linham of Portsmouth, will hold a featured spot on the program for Raemelton Riding club Horse show to be held Sunday at Raemelton Farm. Young Connie, who started to ride three years ago and has compiled a spectacular record of winning 57 times in 58 classes in which she and her pony have appeared, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chet G. Linham, former Mansfield residents. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Linham, 32 Florence avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Campbell, 111 North Mulberry street, are all residents of this city.

The exhibition she will give at the Raemelton show has been a feature of a number of prominent horse shows, including those in Plain City, Georgetown, West Union, the Cincinnati Charity show and the recent Akron Kiwanis show, staged in Akron's Rubber Bowl on Memorial day. It was her performance at the Akron event and its reception by a capacity audience that led sponsors of the Raemelton show to bring her to Mansfield. Riding audiences in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky have watched Connie in the three years she has been riding and a new distinction came recently when she was selected as the personality of the month in an issue of the National Horseman magazine. Her father, C. G. Linham, formerly was associated with the old Mansfield News here and now is advertising manager of the Portsmouth Times. Final preparations have been completed for the show, according to James Bailey, general chairman, who anticipates one of the best shows ever to be given in this vicinity. A group of Tennessee walking horses will also be shown and there have been recent entries from Pennsylvania.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"NOT A THING," I assured him. "But I have a commission from him — something he wants you to do right away."

I was reasonably certain that he would do anything I asked of him, but the thing I wished was rather formidable, and I knew that my father's authority would effectually bolster my own request.

"Sure thing," he assented briskly. "Just tell me what you want."

"First, be careful what you say over the telephone," I told him.

"Okay, I know that," he answered, not cockily, but as one stating a fact.

"Then," I continued, "is that special car of my father's — you know, the number one: don't say its name—but is it ready to go out?"

"Yes, I know which one," he said. "It's all serviced and ready to start anywhere. We can get it out in five minutes."

"Good!" I commented. "How soon, then, can you get four men, besides the driver, to place about two miles from you?"

Gus Ready for Action

His answer was prompt. He is used to doing hurry-up commissions for my father.

"Maybe 10, maybe 15 minutes, to get the men here; five minutes, maybe 10, to drive two miles, depends on traffic. Twenty-five minutes outside; probably less."

"Good!" I said again. "Now please listen carefully. Do you know the hotel at which I stay when I am in the city?"

"Sure, I remember," he said. "I know the name, the number and the street."

"Don't say the name," I cautioned, needlessly enough, for Gus had been in my father's employ long enough to acquire discretion. "But give me the first letter of it."

"'L'," he answered promptly.

"That's right," I told him. "Now, don't give me the street, but tell me the number."

Madge Gives Instructions

He gave it to me correctly, and I gave a little sigh of relief.

"Here are the instructions," I said. "Park a few doors away from the hotel, for you'll be told where to go later. Have the men come into the hotel two at a time, at three-minute intervals, and all come directly up to the room without going to the desk. Here are the floor and room numbers. Please jot them down, and then repeat them to me."

He gave them correctly, and added an unnecessary assurance.

"I understand everything, and I'll get the men to you pretty quick, already yet."

"I know you will, Gus," I said.

I hung up the telephone on the word, and turned to Olga.

"I think that will take care of the man on the balcony," I said.

"I am so relieved," she said with heartfelt earnestness. Then we heard the turning of a key in the lock, and Philip Veritzen came back into the room.

Veritzen Makes a Report

"Everything absolutely quiet in the balcony suite," he said. "I paid particular attention to the draperies over the windows, and they haven't been disturbed."

"Then he is still on the balcony," I said.

"He isn't in his room," he answered. "I had a maid knock, ready to say that she was bringing him towels which she had in her hands. After repeated tappings she entered with her pass key.

"But," he went on, "she reported on what I had asked her to observe. She told me that the window on the court was open, the closet door ajar. So he wasn't hiding in there, and his hat and overcoat were in the closet. Hence it's pretty nearly certain that he is still on the balcony. Now what is your plan?"

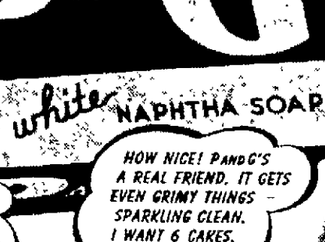
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CLAIRVOYANTS NEEDED

IT REQUIRES a card-reader who is next thing to a clairvoyant in order to head off some of the pretty plays perpetuated by skillful declarers, especially squeeze and lead-throwing end-plays. In the case of the latter, unblocking discards to provide yourself an exit are usually the vital defensive factor. In the case of squeezes, usually the best weapon to break them up is the lead of a suit which destroys communication between the declarer's hand and dummy at the crucial later stage.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
3 NT

West made the rather risky lead of the dummy's first suit, the heart 6, declarer's Q winning it and the diamond Q then being sent through to the K. East opened his long suit with the club 4, the Q winning, and the heart J was finessed. A club then lost to the A and East thereupon made the mistake which resulted in squeezing his partner, returning his club 3 to the K.

Declarer thereupon ran four more diamonds. As the last was led from dummy, that hand also held the spade 6, plus the heart A and 7, South having the spade A-Q-5 and the heart 5, which was discarded. West had the K-10 of each major suit. If he threw a spade, declarer would have four trick-tickers left for only three tricks. So he discarded his heart 10. That left declarer enough anyway, the heart A and 7 and the spade A.

Notice what would have happened if East had read the danger of his club lead on the sixth trick after taking his club A. A spade would have broken up timely communication between the two hostile hands. Even if he could not foresee that a club lead to set up his own entry-less hand could hardly have helped, so a spade should have appeared to be the best chance to earn his side another trick and prevent South from making two extras.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West leads the club J against South's 3-No Trumps, how should he play to make his contract sure first, and secondly, to produce an extra trick?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, June 14

DESPITE certain adverse aspects found in this day's horoscope there should be a definite prospect of advancement, promotion, tokens of preferment, esteem and probably public recognition of importance. There may be delays, disappointments and impediments, with sudden disruption of plans and purposes, but these may be successfully coped with by determination, perseverance, optimism and the aid of those in high places.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprising advancement, success and personal gratification. This in spite of sudden and tenacious obstructions, disruptions, delays and disappointments, which resolutely and practically managed should lead to public notice, honors, esteem, promotion and other favors from those in influential positions. Be tactful and kindly.

A child born on this day should have all the elements of success, with talents, ambition and sound character to rise to signal achievement and public preferment over many reversals, handicaps and frustrations. Safeguard its health.

PLAN PARTY.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XIII

"Certainly she is. She was up there and he went up on some community property snarl — a couple that had been divorced and each married someone else and then they divorced again and remarried, and it was a decision about some property one of 'em had inherited in the meanwhile, some nonsense like that. Marshbanks went to see what he could do, and he met Fran—she was in the nicest group there, out at a ranch—wonderful people!—and a few weeks later they were married. She was ill; she was down and out; she says it's the first divorce they ever had in their family, but it was the family doctor himself who told her she'd lose her mind if she went on living with a crazy man. There's no ill feeling; she says she hopes her first husband will have all the luck in the world. But there it is! Under any other circumstances she wouldn't have looked at Jud Marshbanks.

"You wonder," Cherry submitted, "if any man could keep her happy."

"I don't know. Here we are at your house and I've talked you to death. I don't know, Cherry. But I know he can't. She's afraid of him."

"Afraid of the judge?"

"Terrified." Kelly crossed his arms defiantly, looking handsome and stubborn and gloomy as he faced her.

"I don't see why she should be," Cherry put an impulsive hand upon his arm in goob-bye. "I'm horribly sorry, Kelly," she said, her eyes fixed on his.

"Somebody ought to paint you as Brunhild," he said absently. "I ought to paint you on a rock as Brunhild. When do I see her?" he burst out immediately. "I hang around her house; maybe she comes out and jumps into her car and goes off somewhere; that's all I get! I haven't painted anything for a month. I can't work. I keep waiting for the telephone to ring, hoping it will be Fran, asking me if I can come over. Well," he interrupted himself finally in a lower, apologetic tone, "I'm sorry. Thanks for letting me blow off steam, but I'm so damned — so damned unhappy! Good bye, Cherry; see you soon."

"Good-bye!" She wanted to add "Kelly" again, but did not quite dare. She went up the steps with her heart singing in satisfaction and confidence. If everything in life was not right, it did not take much to make one feel that it might come right on a heavenly spring day of hot sunshine and blue skies.

The gloom of the Porter mansion, the scent of flowers still lingering in the dark halls, the silences, reminded her that the day had its solemn significances too. A detective was moving about, glancing at locks and doorways and silver drawers. Cherry felt strangely idle, for the will was not to be read until some day as yet unappointed, and until it was read she dared not even take a book from the library shelves.

Emma came back tired at three o'clock, and had a late luncheon in her room. Cherry, dressed to go downtown, joined her there.

"You're going out?" Emma asked, mincing roast beef for the gray kitten. "Here, if you must steal my lunch!" she said to Cappy in an undertone.

"I thought I'd walk downtown and see a movie," Cherry answered, dropping into a chair.

"Well, do that," Emma approved. "You've got money? And then maybe if you feel like it you might bring your cards in here before supper, and we'll listen to the radio."

"We could have supper up here," Cherry spoke quietly. But the awkward little overture touched her deeply.

She walked down the street a few minutes later, passing the Marshbanks home just as the judge descended to the street.

"Hello, Cherry," he said. "Walking? The little car is right here in the garage if I could take you somewhere. I came back from the office to get a bite of lunch but I've nothing to do now."

"No, I really want to walk, Judge. I've scarcely stirred out of the house for a week, and I feel so free today that I can hardly keep my feet on the ground."

"You look it!" he said with his friendly smile. "Here's Amy!"

Amy came flying down the steps to join them. "Where are you going, Cherry?"

"I'm ashamed to say," Cherry answered laughing, "that I'm going to a movie in the daytime! I've been shut up for days, and there's been so much talk about treatments and oxygen and all the rest of it that I sort of want to distract myself."

"I'm going with you," said Amy. "Funerals give me the horrors. Wait for me; I'll get my coat!"

She dashed upstairs again just as the big Marshbank car drove up and Fran got out. She looked wearied and very pale in her fresh black, but she was smiling as she put her hand on her husband's arm.

"She's seen Kelly; they've had lunch together!" Cherry thought instantly.

"Where've you been, my dear?" the judge asked casually.

"I suppose it was scandalous not to go to the cemetery and see the whole funeral through," Fran said, avoiding a direct answer. "But there were things I had to do, and I just ran out on it!"

"He's probably crazier about her than she is about him," Cherry said when Amy brought the subject to Kelly and Fran a day or two later.

"You never can tell with Fran; she's deep," Amy answered. She had to come to the Porter house by appointment on this occasion; it was the afternoon when Mrs. Porter's will was to be read. Two quiet elderly women were there from Pasadena; cousins, Emma told Cherry, who had been supported by their rich relative for years. The judge was coming, and surprisingly Amy had been notified to be present.

"She must have left you some money," Cherry surmised, "or they wouldn't have asked you to come."

"She must have had plenty," Amy said in satisfaction.

Emma put her head in the door and told both girls to come downstairs.

"Me, too?" Cherry asked.

"Yes, I think so. Everyone in the house," Emma said briefly, and vanished. Cherry and Amy followed immediately to the library, where chairs had been set in a solemn semi-circle to face the wide, flat mahogany desk at which the lawyer sat. Judge Marshbanks was near him; he smiled at the girls as they came in, and at the household staff, even including the Chinese cook and his helper as they filed in and took seats. Almost at once the will was opened.

Their late employer had remembered them all, leaving to every servant a sum approximating a thousand dollars for each year in her service, and for Emma's eleven years of faithfulness a round twenty-five thousand. Cherry was stupefied to hear her own name read out as beneficiary for a legacy of fifteen hundred.

The old house was to be given to the city as a museum. Everything in the way of personal belongings, upstairs furnishings and the bulk of the estate were left to the granddaughter of her beloved old friend Amelia Wellington, Amy Marshbanks.

There were hundreds of bequests, some enormous. Fifty thousand dollars to an orphanage; fifty thousand more for a chapel to be added to the cathedral; fifty thousand apiece to the indigent cousins from Pasadena. Judge Marshbanks warned Amy that the entire estate might easily be absorbed by these magnificent gestures.

"She lost a great deal of money in twenty-nine," said the judge, "and at the advice of her attorney and myself she put a lot more into annuities shortly afterward. Those stop with her life of course."

"What are your plans, Cherry?" Judge Marshbanks inquired.

"I haven't had time to make plans," said Cherry, "but I think I will go to college. I'm 20 years old, and I feel as if I didn't know anything."

"Well," the judge said, "that's not a bad idea. It will get you among people your own age, shake you up, put you on your own — yes, that's a good plan. Berkeley?"

"Stanford, I thought."

"Why not?" he agreed. "Wait a minute — wait a minute," he added, "I know a nice place down there where you might like to stay. Lots of youngsters in the family; you wouldn't feel so strange. What does Emma think of this? Have you talked to her?"

"Aunt Emma and I talked the night Mrs. Porter was so ill, the last night but one—" Cherry was beginning when Amy put in an animated interruption:

"D'you call her 'Aunt Emma?'"

"Well, yes, I do—sometimes." Cherry's face turned toward the fire flamed until the tips of her ears were red. The title had slipped out inadvertently; she presently glanced at the judge and read perfect comprehension in his look.

"We were sitting upstairs waiting for the doctors to come out of Mrs. Porter's room," she resumed her story, "and I said I hoped she would get well, and Emma said she was sure she wouldn't. So then we talked of what we would do, and Emma's going up into Mendocino, where she has a little place, and retire —not work any more. She says she wants a few chickens and a vegetable garden, that she's tired of the city."

"Well, I should think Emma'd be fixed well enough to do that," the judge said again with an approving nod. And then with a glance at the doorway through which Amy had disappeared in quest of her coat and hat, he added, "So she told you about your mother, eh?"

"A month ago."

"Shock to you?"

"Oh, no, I think," Cherry confessed honestly, "I had been dreaming — imagining that I might have—well, different relations. I always thought Emma was my mother's nurse. But we —we like each other."

"You're a nice girl," the man commented, as if thinking aloud, his half-closed eyes upon her. Cherry flushed with pleasure; her little laugh was proud and embarrassed.

"Did you—did you ever see my mother? Didn't you say you hadn't?" she asked, sobering again.

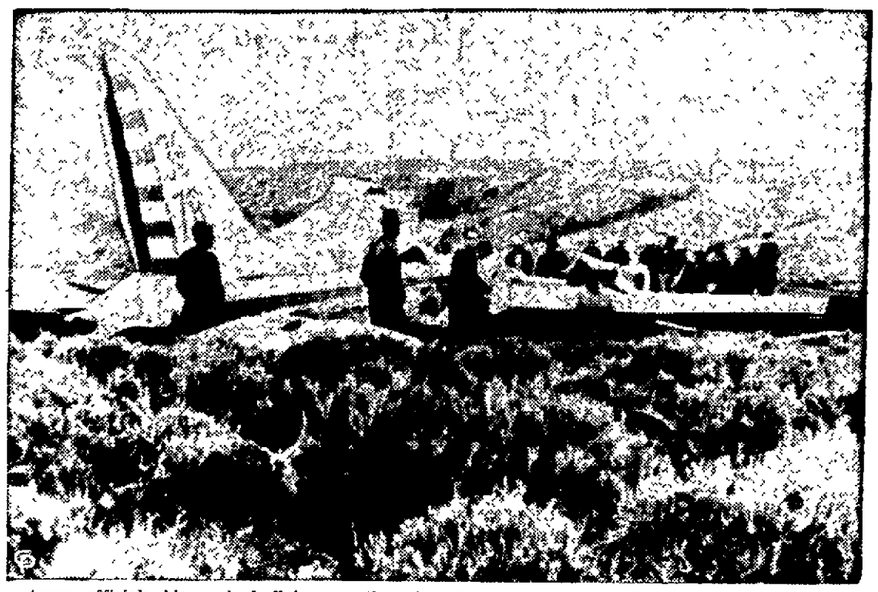
Six Army Fliers Died In This Bomber Crash



Army officials blame bad flying weather for the crash of this Douglas army bomber at Lyman, Wyo., which killed the six army airmen who were flying the bomber from Salt Lake City to Chicago. Members of the searching party which beat through the sagebrush country for two days looking for the downed bomber are seen at the plane's nose where the six flyers were hurled by the crash impact.

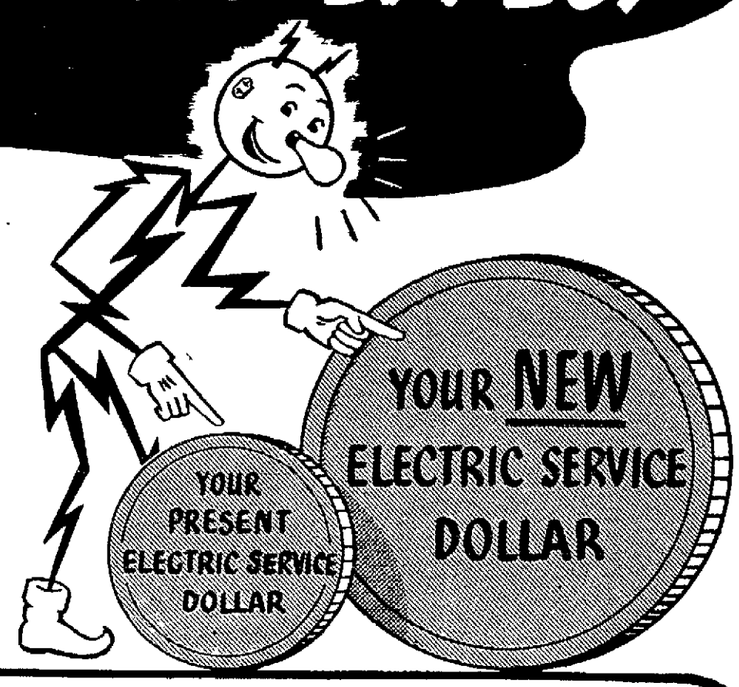
When MANSFIELD'S New Low Electric Rates GO INTO EFFECT

YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE DOLLAR will be worth as much as



67% MORE ... than at present

Look at the table at the right. It shows how much MORE electric service you will be able to use . . . without paying a cent more than you are now paying under present rates . . . when Mansfield's new low electric service rates go into effect soon. You will see from the table that if you are now paying $1.20 a month, you will be able to increase your usage of electricity by 67 per cent and still pay only $1.20 a month. If you are one of the many electric service customers who pay from $1.85 to $2.60 a month for electric service you will be able to increase your usage of electricity from 28 per cent to 44 per cent and yet not pay any more than you are now paying.

Most important to you, this means that you will be able to use more time and work-saving electrical appliances and still not increase your electric service bill. For example, if you are one of this number, you will be able to operate a radio, or cook electrically with an electric roasterette, or enjoy another sight-saving I. E. S. lamp, or operate an electric refrigerator for 20 days . . . based on the average use by the average family . . . and not pay more than you are now paying for electric service. We urge you to begin to plan now to take advantage of this real opportunity to put more electrical servants to work in your home, and enjoy their many advantages without having to increase your electric bill.

If you have been paying this much for electric service per month . . .	You can use this much MORE electricity yet not increase your bill

Ohio Public Aid Costs Cut 24 Per Cent

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Meet Such Interesting People.

(And It's the Little Things That Intrigue You)

* * *

BETTE DAVIS always hugs the elbow of her right arm with the fingers of her left hand when she smokes a cigaret; if she isn't smoking, she hugs both elbows with both hands. Her dynamics on the screen have won her Oscars, but in conversation her voice is as expressionless as the bored monotone of a telephone operator reporting the time of day.

Dorothy Kilgallen

The Duchess of Windsor never uses eyeshadow because she has natural greenish-blue shadows on her eyelids . . . Robert Montgomery is a big favorite with G-men, and vice versa. He knows almost as much as most detectives about criminology, ballistics and kindred flatfoot subjects.

Artie Shaw stacks his phonograph with Toscanini recordings every morning before he brushes his teeth.

If you make a derogatory remark about anyone at all in Oscar Levant's presence, he'll make you blush by immediately claiming that whoever you panned is his best friend—or at least a close relation. Especially if he's never even heard of the person.

Jeanette MacDonald has never been considered a member of the Sweater Set, but ask her to luncheon and it's a good nine-to-one bet that she'll turn up in a three-piece knitted suit.

Terry Lawlor, the red-headed night club singer, is so superstitious about green being a lucky color for her, that when she can't work it into her costume, she paints her toe nails green!

John Payne's hair always looks mussed up off screen . . . When John Bolos is in New York he insists on living at the Plaza, because his favorite little Italian restaurant is right next door on 58th street. . . . Gertrude Niesen doesn't own a rabbit's food—but she carries an ermine tail in her purse for good luck.

Ann Graham brings her stationery to "Panama Hatie" and writes letters in between her scenes. . . . Charles Laughton's idea of heaven is a double-feature house showing cowboy films.

Billy DeWolfe, the Rainbow room satirist, has the most astonishing collection of wild suspenders in town. . . . Honeychile Wilder even calls her pet dog "Honeychile."

Peggy Hopkins Joyce has taken to wearing white open-at-the-throat sports blouses into the gilded bistros. . . . Dorothy Lamour types even her most personal correspondence (via the hunt and peck system) on a portable typewriter she bought second hand long before film fame landed in her sarong-wrapped lap.

Burton Turkus, the Murder, Inc., prosecutor, is one of the town's more fascinating talespinners. When he tells a gang story, he uses jargon right out of a Damon Runyon fiction piece.

When Henny Youngman sees one of those perforated tinfoil tea bags at Lindy's he lifts it right out of the cup it happens to be in and says to the astounded tea-drinkers: "Won't you please say a few words into the microphone?"

William Powell is a great favorite with the local police. He says he's become like a dick himself from playing Nick Charles in so many pictures, and that his feet are never the first things to enter a room any more—he instinctively sticks his head in first to see if he can pick up a couple of clues.

Eddie Davis, the more voluble half of Leon and Eddie, has almost as many jewels as a glamor girl. His collection of rings includes a star sapphire, two star rubies, a diamond, a green cat's eye, a black cat's eye, a gold and amethyst ring, a platinum monogrammed ring, and an American Flag ring executed in diamonds, rubies and sapphires.

Herman Shumlin always reads new plays in the softest, most comfortable seat he can find. Theory is that if the play can hold his attention when he's in an ideal spot to doze of, it's worth considering.

Ezra Stone, the ether "Henry Aldrich" has a stand especially designed for his moments before the microphone. It has places for ten pencils, a pipe, tobacco, matches, a stop watch, a script indicator so he can keep his place, and space for an apple and any eggs he may lay during the course of the show.

Alfred Hitchcock has a horror of being trapped in a strange house . . . Mischa Auer prefers writing postcards rather than letters. Likes the idea so much that if he can't get in what he wants to tell on one card, he sends you two.

ANGLERS OPEN CHARLES MILL SEASON MONDAY

Entire Lake Available For Fishing Till Sept. 1; Part To Be Closed Then.

All of Charles Mill lake in Richland and Ashland counties will be open for fishing from next Monday until Sept. 1, but after Sept. 1 that part of the lake north of U. S. route 30 will be closed permanently as a game sanctuary, the Ohio Conservation commission decided yesterday following a meeting in Columbus.

The commission also announced that the "staggered-hunting" season for pheasants and rabbits will be abandoned, and that the squirrel shooting season will be moved up about two weeks. Final approval of the game law changes must wait, however, until the commission's July 9 meeting.

Under the commission's plan to establish a game sanctuary at Charles Mill lake, there would be a permanent ban against hunting and fishnig in the 435 acres of the lake north of U. S. route 30 after Sept. 1. It was understood that the portion of the lake south of the highway toward the dam, which includes 916 acres of water, would be open to fishermen throughout the summer and fall.

Fishing is permitted now only in the pool below the dam. The lake north of the highway has never been open to fishermen.

The new squirrel season in District 1, including Richland, Ashland, Crawford and Huron counties, will be from Sept. 22 to 30. In southern Ohio the season will open Sept. 15 and close Sept. 30. Last year the season was from Sept. 25 to Oct. 10.

The rabbit season was set for Nov. 15 to Jan. 1, inclusive, with bag limits of four a day with four in possession after the first day. With the "staggered" season out for pheasants, the birds may be taken this year from Nov. 15 to 30, inclusive. The bag limits will remain at two cock pheasants daily with four in possession after the first day.

The state-wide skunk and opossum season was shortened two weeks. It will open Dec. 1 instead of Nov. 15 and close Jan. 15.

Eastern motorists passing the NYA reservation near Charles Mill dam last night will probably believe all those stories about Ohio being in the "wild and wooly" west. About 50 Sioux indians enroute from South Dakota to an encampment in West Virginia camped overnight at the reservation. The bucks sat back in approved Indian style and watched the squaws wrestle with the tepees and on all the chores about the camp. They were accompanied by a government representative.

When a stranger stole 30 water glasses from a display in front of a grocery store yesterday, S. S. Jordon of 156 North Main street was curious as well as indignant. He followed the man who turned into a lane at the rear of a home farther up the street. Police entered the house a few minutes later to find the stranger, Fred J. Herron of Britt, Iowa, serving cider in the glasses. Police said he stole the glasses and had intended to sell them later.

REPORT BETTER BUSINESS ENDS RELIEF WORRY

Institute Reports 1940 Costs In State Nearly Fourth Less Than Year Ago.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Total public aid in Ohio during 1940 was 24 per cent less than the year before, the Ohio Institute reported today, stating that improved business conditions had solved most of the relief "headaches" in the major cities.

The institute, a governmental research agency, said total aid, including general relief, WPA, old age pensions, surplus commodities and soldiers, blind and children relief, decreased $44,619,000. The entire bill was $143,011,276.

During the last four years the aid has reached a total of $679,977,809.

The 1940 total amounted to a sum equal to $20.70 for every man, woman and child in the state, the institute said.

R. E. Miles, institute director, said that general relief in Ohio's metropolitan areas was proving less of a problem "but the problem of providing for the needy continues to be a serious one in the mining and marginal agricultural counties of southeastern Ohio."

The institute pointed out that 12 counties, 11 are located in southern Ohio, had higher per capita public aid costs than did metropolitan Cuyahoga county last year.

Highest per population cost counties ranked as follows: Vinton, Scioto, Hocking, Pike, Meigs, Athens, Nobile, Jackson, Perry, Guernsey, Trumbull and Lawrence.

"In the state as a whole," the report said, "the largest public aid program from the standpoint of expenditures was WPA, which paid almost $75,000,000 in 1940 to workers certified to be "in need." Next largest program was aid for the aged, through which almost $35,000,000 was distributed to needy persons 65 or over."

"It is evident a large part of the public aid total is not of a temporary character," the institute said. "Aid for the aged, aid to dependent children and aid for the blind have shown a steady increase, with waiting lists still pending. WPA still has a substantial residue of persons not accepted for employment by private industry under normal conditions, although capable of performing considerable useful work."

In addition to being 24 per cent below the 1939 total, aid last year was 36 per cent below the 1938 total and 13 per cent above the 1937 total.

Orville Wright Saddened at War Uses of His Invention

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI — Orville Wright, who with his late brother, Wilbur, gave modern flight to the world, reflects with wonder—and sadness—upon the uses to which the airplane has been put.

The Dayton man, who in December, 1903, soared from the sands of Kittyhawk, S. C., is now within two months of the three-score-and-ten mark.

"Just to think," he mused, "Wilbur and I flew behind a little thing of four cylinders that developed all of 40 horsepower, maybe 44."

He was fingering the cylinder heads of a 1,700 horsepower airplane motor weighing more than a ton—the first produced at the new Wright Aeronautical Corporation's Lockland plant, dedication of which he saw yesterday as gues of honor.

"In a sense, I guess we didn't know what we were doing when we built our first plane," he went on. "We never envisaged the plane as a terrible engine of war, certainly. But there will always be someone who will abuse anything. That has always been my answer when people ask whether I would have attempted our early experiments had I been able to foresee all the terrible destruction that has come from the air."

After they returned from Kittyhawk in December, 1903, the two brothers and two helpers worked until May to piece together a motor for their next plane.

"And today," said Wright, "officials tell me this plant is producing at a rate of close to 100 a month and by next June it will be 1,000."

Three prizes donated by local merchants will be awarded. The first prize, an airplane trophy, will be by Sam Fox, jeweler. Second and third prizes will be airplane kits donated by the E. C. Peat Hardware company and the Mansfield Athletic Supply company.

Other projects chosen for the season were "A Sewing Clinic" and "Making Slip Covers." Miss Bay said extension specialists from Ohio State university will be here to help county women with the projects. Miss Bay also will meet with the groups at their community sessions.

The program set up yesterday is subject to final approval by the extension department at Ohio State, the home demonstration charge of Miss Bay and Miss Nellie Watts, state supervisor of farm agent said. The meeting was in women's programs.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — For the third successive month job placements in private employment hit a new high in Ohio. The state's employment service division reported today that last month 28,138 placements were made. The previous high mark was 25,716 in April.

H. C. Atkinson, bureau of unemployment compensation administrator, attributed the continued employment increase to better business conditions and the booming defense program.

He said a favorable employment situation was further reflected in a decline of jobless insurance benefits to $869,371 in May, a new low. The amount was 66.8 per cent under May, 1940.

Charles Mill Sportsmen Win Fishing Controversy

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Just about the toughest fielding chances, to my way of thinking, that Ohio State league ball players have to face at the Fairground are those towering foul balls back in the lights that fall straight out of the mazdas, presenting nothing more than a blurred streak to the blinking eyes of the courageous catcher who tries to smother 'em.

If a daytime outfielder can lose a fly ball in the sun, what chance do you think these night owls have of grabbing a flash falling out of the floodlights?

It's an unwritten rule for scorers in the Ohio State league not to give errors for foul balls dropped back of the lights. And I don't give 'em for those tall ones that get away in front of the shiny glare.

So I like the way Tim Mangan goes after those ghost 'balls when he hasn't more than a ghost of a chance of grabbing 'em. And if he's got room to run for those that go back of the lights, he gets out and goes for them too.

Tiny Tim goes at the trot
To give those ghost balls all he's got,
And puts himself upon the spot,
For maybe he gets 'em, maybe not.

Bill Ward, the old Lima manager turned umpire, was just a bit apologetic before Monday night's game at the Fairground. "Rohl and I really had a bad night our last trip in here," says he. I don't think we can ever have that bad a night again."

So Rohl and Ward went out and did an acceptable job of arbiting, and they repeated in Wednesday night's double header. They're booked back again for Saturday night's twin bill, which gives them plenty of early opportunity to prove to Mansfield fans that they're not so bad after all.

As you've been informed before, Ward and Rohl came in here last week for that Fremont double header with the reputation of being the best pair of thumb waivers in the Ohio State league.

They worked the Lima-Fremont game at Fremont Tuesday night, and in Wednesday's Fremont paper was the word that their work in that game was the best seen there this season.

This has been running through my noodle for three days, and to preserve some semblance of sanity I'll have to get rid of it:
Casey would waltz with a strawberry blond,
And the band played on,
He'd mop up the floor with the girl he'd adore,
And the band played on.

The time is coming very soon now when an all-star Ohio State league team is selected to play the first half champions in the home city of the title winners.

And if Bob Ankrum, Mansfield's ground covering shortstop, isn't named to that all-star team, there'll be only one excuse to my way of thinking.

That'll be because Mansfield is the first half champion.

Derringer Still Has Wizardry

Needs Just One Run In First to Beat Braves.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

A LOT of tears have been shed this season over the failure of big Paul Derringer to dominate the National League pitching scene as he did in leading the Cincinnati Reds to two pennants and a World championship.

The Duke, at 33, is a little fatter and a little slower than he was last year. He was hurt during spring training and had some trouble getting started. This was not helped by the lamentable lack of hitting from his teammates.

But 10 years in the Big Time have made this huge righthander one of the craftiest hurlers in the business. Game in and game out, even now, he can do as much with his curves, knucklers, changes of pace and control as most of the rubber-armed speedballers.

He showed how tough he can be yesterday by pitching four-hit ball to beat the Boston Braves, 1-0. The Reds made only five singles themselves off young Art Johnson, a southpaw, but they managed to link two of them with a walk for a run in the first inning.

That was all Derringer needed He gave just one base on balls, fanned a half-dozen, and let runners get as far as second base only three times

The day's only other National League game also was an air-tight pitching spectacle—between Carl Hubbell and Bill Lee, with the New York Giants stopping the Chicago Cubs, 2-0. Lee allowed six hits to Hubbell's eight.

Although the teams were tied yesterday, a freak in the percentages lifted the Giants into third place ahead of the Reds, .510 to .509

In the American League the Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns 9-4 and 3-2. The Philadelphia Athletics copped a nick-and-tuck struggle from the Detroit Tigers, 5-3, on Al Brancato's three-run circuit clout in the ninth inning.

What with John Rundan Rigney withdrawing his request for draft deferment, Joe DiMaggio hitting his 12th homer of the season and running his hitting streak to 26 straight games, and Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox filing a protest, the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox had a high old time of it in their night game.

The Yankees finally won in the 10th, 3-2, on DiMaggio's four-bagger. But Dykes announced in the ninth he would protest, claiming that a spectator reached out and touched a ball hit by Red Ruffing and thus interfered with Myrl Hoag's fielding The Ruffing hit went for two bases and brought in the tying Yankee run

TENNIS CHAMP M'NEILL BATTLES OLEWINE

ST LOUIS—(AP)—Don McNeill, national tennis champion and former Kenyon college star, tangles with Charles Olewine of Santa Monica, Calif today in quarter finals of the Triple A Invitation tourney here

In second round doubles yesterday, McNeill and Frank Parker of Altadena, Calif, eliminated Edmund Serrano and Ken Oliver of St Louis, 6-0, 7-5 At Chicago it was announced that McNeill, the defending champ, was seeded first in the national clay courts meet opening Saturday.

Kansas City After Association Lead

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City, back on home ground is off to an auspicious start in its fight to regain top rung of the American Association

The Blues defeated Toledo's invading Mudhens last night, 4 to 3, with a two-run rally in the eighth inning. Johnny Marcum yielded only eight hits but allowed the Blues to bunch six in two innings.

* * *

The victory advanced the second-place Blues to within a half game of leading Columbus, which was idle along with the other five teams—all washed out by rain.

JOCKEY SUSPENDED

CHICAGO—(INS)—Jockey Johnny Adams was under suspension today for the balance of the Lincoln Fields race meeting as a result of a bumping his mount gave Latepass, later declared the winner, in the third race yesterday.

Idle Braves Gain Half Game on Loop Leaders.

Mansfield Braves advanced to within one and one-half games of first place in the Ohio State league pennant chase last evening while dining as the guests of the City News at the Greystone.

With their game at Tiffin rained out, the Braves stayed home and enjoyed the evening, and they enjoyed it even more when they learned that the lowly Lima Pandas had risen up in their wrath and knocked off the loop-leading Findlay Oilers, 9 to 4.

This was the only game played in the circuit last evening, and advanced Tiffin and Fremont to within half a game of first place.

Tonight the Braves are booked at Lima, and they meet the Pandas in a double-header here tomorrow night in a game set aside for Dad's Night. Children under 16, accompanied by their fathers, will be admitted free for the twin bill, and a season ticket will be given the father with the most children present.

Rigney Offers To Trade Suits

Would Call Off Bid For Deferment In Draft.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Johnny Rigney of the Chicago White Sox offered today to trade his pitcher's glove for an army uniform and forget he ever wanted those July and August salary checks

His draft board said he probably would be inducted into the army next Wednesday but added it was uncertain whether it still could include him in the June quota.

Rigney's board had granted his request for a 60-day deferment but the state selective service administration appealed the decision to President Roosevelt as a test case. The president's ruling would have affected all baseball clubs.

The 26-year-old pitcher issued a formal statement announcing he had withdrawn his request because of a controversy over the legal provision which was the basis of his deferment.

Rigney had told the draft board his scheduled inductment June 20 would result in "individual hardship" because he would lost four-elevents of his annual salary, reported to be $12,000. He said he would need the money if he marries his fiancee, Dorothy Comiskey, White Sox treasurer.

Talbot Picks Louis By Knockout In Three Rounds

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK —(AP)— Joe Louis will knock out Billy Conn in about three rounds next Wednesday night at the Polo grounds. If it goes longer than that, Billy will be just plain lucky.

This is said after a personal tour of inspection of the champion's training camp at Greenwood Lake, just up the Hudson, where the large negro is getting ready to defend his championship

There has been considerable talk about Louis being worn out by his strenuous campaign of the past spring, during which he has fought more often than necessary.

There is nothing to it, folks. This Joe Louis still is the greatest fighting man you or I will see in a lifetime. It is your argument against mine when you say Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney could have whipped him.

There is nothing Joe Louis lacks to make him a great fighter. Yesterday I saw that he was a much finer boxer than Billy Conn. Against four sparring partners, who were doing their poor best to emulate Conn, he picked off their punches with his right glove, a flick at a time, and then tore them to shreds.

What makes it worse for Conn, a mere light-heavyweight trying to fight a big man, is that Louis is not feeling friendly about this fight. Joe reads the papers, and he has noted that Conn repeatedly has referred to him as a "dumb negro" and an "old man" While Louis realizes that a "ghost writer" has been responsible for these remarks, he still feels that Conn has condoned them, and he is sore about it. He intends to knock Billy on his head—quickly.

The cut that Louis got on his left eye in his scrap with Buddy Baer last month in Washington has healed miraculously. Three stitches were taken, and it required a close inspection to find the scar at all. Louis merely laughed at the suggestion that Conn would find the cut a target next Wednesday.

* * *

Louis never looked better to the naked eye than he does right now. Big as he is, there doesn't appear to be a pound of excess flesh on his 202-pound frame.

North End of Lake Opened by State

Petitions Passed By Richland Club Overwhelm Ashland Opposition

MEMBERS of the Charles Mill Lake Sportsmen's club, which already numbers 400 members, will have something to crow about when they meet tonight at 7:30 in Mansfield's municipal court room.

From Columbus comes the word that the Ohio conservation commission has ordered the north end of the lake opened to fishing from next Monday to Labor day.

At the public nearing before the commission Tuesday, one of the hottest controversies centered around the commission's proposal to open the area.

Conservation division experts had recommended opening of that part of the lake above Route 30, including 435 acres, which had been used as a spawning area, the recommendation being made on the grounds that the spawning water was overcrowded and there was not enough fish food.

Opposition to opening the area developed in Ashland county where the argument was advanced that if the fish didn't have enough food, the fish would move out where there was food, and that the area should be kept as a fish preserve.

Richland sportsmen, banking on the recommendation of the conservation experts, were almost caught napping when Ashland groups, including the recently organized Ashland Junior Chamber of Commerce, passed petitions protesting against the opening of the spawning area.

The Charles Mill Lake club immediately got out petitions backing the experts and asking for the opening of the north end of the lake, and in a very short time had over 6,000 signers.

* * *

Tonight's meeting of the club, announced Wednesday, was originally scheduled for a report on the commission action, and to complete plans for a further membership drive by the club.

Now the club will meet to cheer the commission and enter into its membership campaign with renewed vigor.

The club also lists among its achievements during its short period of activity the lifting of rental fees for boat space at Mifflin lake. Last year boat owners paid $2 license fees for use of the lake, and $2 for boat space. The latter charge has been removed this year, except at O'Dell's landing.

* * *

The commission yesterday cut to one week, Sept. 22-30, the open season on squirrels in northern Ohio, the area being bounded on the south by Richland, Mercer, Auglaize, Hardin, Wyandot, Crawford, Wayne, Stark and Columbiana counties, and advanced the Reds and Indians Meet In Cooperstown Game.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y.—(AP)—Celebration of baseball's 102nd anniversary here today is an all-Ohio event.

The Cleveland Indians, current American league leaders, oppose the world champion Cincinnati Reds of the National league in an exhibition expected to draw about 10,000 fans to this birthplace of the sport.

* * *

Minus club expenses, game receipts go to support the baseball Museum and Hall of Fame dedicated two years ago in honor of the centennial anniversary of Gen. Abner Doubleday's invention of the diamond sport.

General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds said today's game established the Coopertown classic on a permanent basis for the first time.

Commissioner Kenesaw Landis and American and National league presidents agreed to name two teams—one from each league and different ones in turn—at the season's start to play here on a date as near June 12, baseball's birthday anniversary, as practicable, Giles said.

Monte Pearson, ex-Yankee whose righthand slants proved effective against the Indians when Pearson was in the junior loop is down to hurl for the Reds. Cleveland's probable pitchers are Cal Dorsett and Ken Jungels, righthanders. Pearson has a record of two losses, and Dorsett of one in as many starts this season.

Outcome of today's game will be watched with no little interest in the Buckeye state where baseball fans divide allegiance between the Indians and Reds, largely in accord with the nearness of their residence to the northeastern or Southwestern Ohio club.

* * *

For the past two seasons Buckeye fans hoped in vain for an all-Ohio World series, and they're hoping again this year.

Except for Pitchers Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and Elmer Riddle, the entire Redleg roster was here en route home from an eastern swing which ended with a 1-0 victory over Boston yesterday.

Cleveland, rained out of a home game with Washington yesterday, is heading east to open a series with the New York Yankees Saturday. Outfielder Roy Weatherly remained in a Cleveland hospital because of a drop in blood pressure. Weatherly was hit in the head by a pitched ball in Wednesday's game

'Old Man River' Rows On

Affectionately known as "Old Man River," Rev. Raymond C. Knox, 65-year-old chaplain of Columbia university, New York City, has departed from New York to row the 90 miles up the Hudson river to Poughkeepsie, scene of the intercollegiate regatta, June 25. Rev. Knox will stay with the team in training near there. For the past 35 years, the chaplain has rowed at least 200 days a year, averaging four miles a day—a total of 28,000 miles.

BOSTON —(INS)— In a flat player-for-player deal, the Boston Braves today traded 35-year-old Lloyd Waner to the Reds for John Hutchins, 24-year-old right-handed hurler. Hutchins has seen little Major league service since his 1939 purchase from Pensacola of the Southeastern league.

Lady Golfers Confront Jinx

Semi-Finalists Clash For Crown Today.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, O. —(AP)— That old "Friday the 13th" jinx doesn't mean a thing to the four semi-finalists in the 12th annual women's western open golf championship. Anything that occurs probably will seem anti-climatic when compared with yesterday's quarter-final activities in the lower bracket.

The upper half of the draw rolled along as expected, with Patty Berg, the Minneapolis professional and former amateur champion, winning a semi-finals berth opposite Betty Jameson, the two-time national amateur queen from old San Antonio.

But in the other match, where the galleryites had expected Helen Dettweiler, the Washington professional and winner of the open in 1939, to meet Mary Agnes Wall, the star from Menominee, Mich., two newcomers to big time golf were found.

* * *

They are Mrs. James D. Platt, jr., of Dayton, the Ohio medal play champion, who tacked a convincing 7 and 6 defeat on Miss Wettweiler in the quarter finals, and Mrs. Burt Weil of Cincinnati, a three-time winner of the Ohio championship, who ushered Miss Wall to the sidelines, one down.

Miss Dettweiler did not win a hole from Mrs. Platt.

Miss Berg reached the semi-finals with a 3 and 2 decision over 17-year-old Georgia Tainter, western junior champion from Fargo, N. D., while Miss Jameson missed par by only one stroke in hammering out a 4 and 3 win over Miss Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, O.

THEATERS

Air Spectacle.

The training of America's birdmen provides "I Wanted Wings," opening at the Ohio Sunday, with a thrilling story. Made with the complete co-operation of the army air corps at Randolph, Kelly and March fields, the new film takes the audience through the training of America's air cadets and deals with the lives and loves of three airmen in particular. Starring Ray Milland, William Holden and Wayne Morris the picture has the blond newcomer, Veronica Lake and Constance Moore in the cast. Mitchell Leisen directed.

"A Woman's Face."

Hailed as one of the outstanding photoplays of 1941, "A Woman's Face," starring Joan Crawford opens Saturday at the Madison. It is the story of a girl's struggle to beat the world she hates because of her disfigurement and of her blossoming into a beautiful woman with the aid of plastic surgery. Packed with spectacular action the production casts Conrad Veidt in the role of a madman, who has the girl in his clutches, and Melvyn Douglas in the part of the surgeon. Reginald Owen and Donald Meek are cast. "Model Wife," with Joan Blondell and Dick Powell is the second feature.

Havana Hillbillies.

An Oklahoma hillbilly band that sets out to capture Broadway via Havana furnishes music and action in "Madame La Zonga," opening today at the Ritz. Lupe Velez plays "La Zonga," proprietress of a Havana night spot who closes her place before the band gets there and thereby opens the way to further difficulties. Eddie Quillan and Charles Lang head the band and Leon Errol and Helen Parrish help top the cast. Johnny Mack Brown in "Bury Me Not On the Lone Prairie," shares the bill.

Again the Menace.

Victor Jory after a brief sojourn in sympathetic roles returns to a menacing characterization in "Give Us Wings," showing at the Park. As the unscrupulous operator of an aerial crop-dusting company he provides broken-down planes to his youthful aviators to carry out their dangerous work. The "Dead End Kids" are the venturesome "dusters" and the cast also includes Anne Gwynne. Comedy is injected into the film by a gala fish fry. "The Border Legion," with Roy Rogers is Film No. 2.

Comedy Romance.

When two young moderns start dictating the love interest of their elders things begin to happen in "Double Date," a gay comedy starring Edmund Lowe and Una Merkel. Lowe plays the misunderstood father whose romance with Miss Merkel is thwarted by Peggy Moran and Rand Brooks. Daniel Boone's stirring fight to rout outlaws from Pecos, small western town on the road to Tuscon, is thrillingly depicted in "The Return of Daniel Boone," Bill Elliot's starring vehicle and the co-attraction. Betty Miles and Walter Soderling are in the cast.

Charles Mill Sportsmen Win Fishing Controversy

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

Just about the toughest fielding chances, to my way of thinking, that Ohio State league ball players have to face at the Fairground are those towering foul balls back in the lights that fall straight out of the mazdas, presenting nothing more than a blurred streak to the blinking eyes of the courageous catcher who tries to smother 'em.

If a daytime outfielder can lose a fly ball in the sun, what chance do you think these night owls have of grabbing a flash falling out of the floodlights?

It's an unwritten rule for scorers in the Ohio State league not to give errors for foul balls dropped back of the lights. And I don't give em for those tall ones that get away in front of the shiny glare.

So I like the way Tim Mangan goes after those ghost balls when he hasn't more than a ghost of a chance of grabbing 'em. And if he's got room to run for those that go back of the lights, he gets out and goes for them too.

Tiny Tim goes at the trot
To give those ghost balls all he's got,
And puts himself upon the spot,
For maybe he gets 'em, maybe not.

Bill Ward, the old Lima manager turned umpire, was just a bit apologetic before Monday night's game at the Fairground. "Rohl and I really had a bad night our last trip in here," says he. I don't think we can ever have that bad a night again."

So Rohl and Ward went out and did an acceptable job of arbiting, and they repeated in Wednesday night's double header. They're booked back again for Saturday night's twin bill, which gives them plenty of early opportunity to prove to Mansfield fans that they're not so bad after all.

As you've been informed before, Ward and Rohl came in here last week for that Fremont double header with the reputation of being the best pair of thumb wavers in the Ohio State league

They worked the Lima-Fremont game at Fremont Tuesday night and in Wednesday's Fremont paper was the word that their work in that game was the best seen there this season.

* * *

This has been running through my noodle for three days, and to preserve some semblance of sanity I'll have to get rid of it:
Casey would waltz with a stromberry blond,
And the band played on.
He'd mop up the floor with the girl he'd adore.
And the band played on.

The time is coming very soon now when an all-star Ohio State league team is selected to play the first half champions in the home city of the title winners.

And if Bob Ankrum, Mansfield's ground covering shortstop, isn't named to that all-star team, there'll be only one excuse to my way of thinking.

That'll be because Mansfield is the first half champion.

Derringer Still Has Wizardry

Needs Just One Run In First to Beat Braves.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

A LOT of tears have been shed this season over the failure of big Paul Derringer to dominate the National League pitching scene as he did in leading the Cincinnati Reds to two pennants and a World championship.

The Duke, at 33, is a little fatter and a little slower than he was last year. He was hurt during spring training and had some trouble getting started. This was not helped by the lamentable lack of hitting from his teammates.

But 10 years in the Big Time have made this huge righthander one of the craftiest hurlers in the business. Game in and game out, even now, he can do as much with his curves, knucklers, changes of pace and control as most of the rubber-armed speedballers.

He showed how tough he can be yesterday by pitching four-hit ball to beat the Boston Braves, 1-0 The Reds made only five singles themselves off young Art Johnson, a southpaw, but they managed to link two of them with a walk for a run in the first inning.

That was all Derringer needed He gave just one base on balls, fanned a half-dozen, and let runners get as far as second base only three times.

The day's only other National League game also was an air-tight pitching spectacle—between Carl Hubbell and Bill Lee, with the New York Giants stopping the Chicago Cubs, 2-0. Lee allowed six hits to Hubbell's eight.

Although the teams were tied yesterday, a freak in the percentages lifted the Giants into third place ahead of the Reds, .510 to .509

In the American League the Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with the St Louis Browns 9-4 and 3-2. The Philadelphia Athletics copped a nick-and-tuck struggle from the Detroit Tigers, 5-3, on Al Brancato's three-run circuit clout in the ninth inning.

What with John Rundan Rigney withdrawing his request for draft deferment, Joe DiMaggio hitting his 12th homer of the season and running his hitting streak to 26 straight games, and Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox filing a protest, the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox had a high old time of it in their night game.

The Yankees finally won in the 10th, 3-2, on DiMaggio's four-bagger But Dykes announced in the ninth he would protest, claiming that a spectator reached out and touched a ball hit by Red Ruffing and thus interfered with Myril Hoag's fielding The Ruffing hit went for two bases and brought in the tying Yankee run

TENNIS CHAMP M'NEILL BATTLES OLEWINE

ST LOUIS—(AP)—Don McNeill national tennis champion and former Kenyon college star, tangles with Charles Olewine of Santa Monica, Calif today in quarter finals of the Triple A Invitation tourney here

In second round doubles yesterday, McNeill and Frank Parker of Altadena, Calif, eliminated Edmund Serrano and Ken Oliver of St Louis 6-0, 7-5 At Chicago it was announced that McNeill, the defending champ, was seeded first in the national clay courts meet opening Saturday.

Kansas City After Association Lead

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City back on home ground is off to an auspicious start in its fight to regain top rung of the American Association.

The Blues defeated Toledo's invading Mudhens last night, 4 to 3, with a two-run rally in the eighth inning. Johnny Marcum yielded only eight hits but allowed the Blues to bunch six in two innings.

* * *

The victory advanced the second-place Blues to within a half game of leading Columbus, which was idle along with the other five teams—all washed out by rain.

JOCKEY SUSPENDED

CHICAGO—(INS)—Jockey Johnny Adams was under suspension today for the balance of the Lincoln Fields race meeting as a result of a bumping his mount gave Litepass, later declared the winner, in the third race yesterday.

B-LEAGUE GOLFERS SEE ACTION TODAY

Pandas Trim Findlay Club

Idle Braves Gain Half Game on Loop Leaders.

Mansfield Braves advanced to within one and one-half games of first place in the Ohio State league pennant chase last evening while dining as the guests of the City News at the Greystone.

With their game at Tiffin rained out, the Braves stayed home and enjoyed the evening, and they enjoyed it even more when they learned that the lowly Lima Pandas had risen up in their wrath and knocked off the loop-leading Findlay Oilers, 9 to 4.

This was the only game played in the circuit last evening, and advanced Tiffin and Fremont to within half a game of first place.

Tonight the Braves are booked at Lima, and they meet the Pandas in a double-header here tomorrow night in a game set aside for Dad's Night. Children under 16, accompanied by their fathers, will be admitted free for the twin bill, and a season ticket will be given the father with the most children present.

Rigney Offers To Trade Suits

Would Call Off Bid For Deferment In Draft.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Johnny Rigney of the Chicago White Sox offered today to trade his pitcher's glove for an army uniform and forget he ever wanted those July and August salary checks.

His draft board said he probably would be inducted into the army next Wednesday but added it was uncertain whether it still could include him in the June quota.

Rigney's board had granted his request for a 60-day deferment but the state selective service administration appealed the decision to President Roosevelt as a test case. The president's ruling would have affected all baseball clubs.

The 26-year-old pitcher issued a formal statement announcing he had withdrawn his request because of a controversy over the legal provision which was the basis of his deferment.

Rigney had told the draft board his scheduled inductment June 20 would result in "individual hardship" because he would lost four-elevents of his annual salary, reported to be $12,000. He said he would need the money if he marries his fiancee, Dorothy Comiskey, White Sox treasurer.

Talbot Picks Louis By Knockout In Three Rounds

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Joe Louis will knock out Billy Conn in about three rounds next Wednesday night at the Polo grounds. If it goes longer than that, Billy will be just plain lucky.

This is said after a personal tour of inspection of the champion's training camp at Greenwood Lake, just up the Hudson, where the large negro is getting ready to defend his championship.

There has been considerable talk about Louis being worn out by his strenuous campaign of the past spring, during which he has fought more often than necessary.

There is nothing to it, folks. This Joe Louis still is the greatest fighting man you or I will see in a lifetime. It is your argument against mine when you say Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney could have whipped him.

There is nothing Joe Louis lacks to make him a great fighter. Yesterday I saw that he was a much finer boxer than Billy Conn. Against four sparring partners, who were doing their poor best to emulate Conn, he picked off their punches with his right glove, a flick at a time, and then tore them to shreds.

What makes it worse for Conn, a mere light-heavyweight trying to fight a big man, is that Louis is not feeling friendly about this fight Joe reads the papers, and he has noted that Conn repeatedly has referred to him as a "dumb negro" and an "old man" While Louis realizes that a "ghost writer" has been responsible for these remarks, he still feels that Conn has condoned them, and he is sore about it He intends to knock Billy on his head—quickly.

The cut that Louis got on his left eye in his scrap with Buddy Baer last month in Washington has healed miraculously. Three stitches were taken, and it required a close inspection to find the scar at all. Louis merely laughed at the suggestion that Conn would find the cut a target next Wednesday.

* * *

Louis never looked better to the naked eye than he does right now. Big as he is, there doesn't appear to be a pound of excess flesh on his 202-pound frame.

North End of Lake Opened by State

Petitions Passed By Richland Club Overwhelm Ashland Opposition

MEMBERS of the Charles Mill Lake Sportsmen's club, which already numbers 400 members, will have something to crow about when they meet tonight at 7:30 in Mansfield's municipal court room.

From Columbus comes the word that the Ohio conservation commission has ordered the north end of the lake opened to fishing from next Monday to Labor day.

At the public hearing before the commission Tuesday, one of the hottest controversies centered around the commission's proposal to open the area.

Conservation division experts had recommended opening of that part of the lake above Route 30, including 435 acres, which had been used as a spawning area, the recommendation being made on the grounds that the spawning water was overcrowded and there was not enough fish food.

Opposition to opening the area developed in Ashland county where the argument was advanced that if the fish didn't have enough food, the fish would move out where there was food, and that the area should be kept as a fish preserve.

Richland sportsmen, banking on the recommendation of the conservation experts, were almost caught napping when Ashland groups, including the recently organized Ashland Junior Chamber of Commerce, passed petitions protesting against the opening of the spawning area.

The Charles Mill Lake club immediately got out petitions backing the experts and asking for the opening of the north end of the lake, and in a very short time had over 6,000 signers.

* * *

Tonight's meeting of the club, announced Wednesday, was originally scheduled for a report on the commission action, and to complete plans for a further membership drive by the club.

Now the club will meet to cheer the commission and enter into its membership campaign with renewed vigor.

The club also lists among its achievements during its short period of activity the lifting of rental fees for boat space at Mifflin lake. Last year boat owners paid $2 license fees for use of the lake, and $2 for boat space. The latter charge has been removed this year, except at O'Dell's landing.

* * *

The commission yesterday cut to one week, Sept. 22-30, the open season on squirrels in northern Ohio, the area being bounded on the south by Richland, Mercer, Auglaize, Hardin, Wyandot, Crawford, Wayne, Stark and Columbiana counties, and advanced the

Baseball Birthday Tilt Set

Reds and Indians Meet In Cooperstown Game.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y.—(AP)—Celebration of baseball's 102nd anniversary here today is an all-Ohio event.

The Cleveland Indians, current American league leaders, oppose the world champion Cincinnati Reds of the National league in an exhibition expected to draw about 10,000 fans to this birthplace of the sport.

* * *

Minus club expenses, game receipts go to support the baseball Museum and Hall of Fame dedicated two years ago in honor of the centennial anniversary of Gen. Abner Doubleday's invention of the diamond sport.

General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds said today's game established the Coopertown classic on a permanent basis for the first time.

Commissioner Kenesaw Landis and American and National league presidents agreed to name two teams—one from each league and different ones in turn—at the season's start to play here on a date as near June 12, baseball's birthday anniversary, as practicable, Giles said.

Monte Pearson, ex-Yankee whose righthand slants proved effective against the Indians when Pearson was in the junior loop is down to hurl for the Reds. Cleveland's probable pitchers are Cal Dorsett and Ken Jungels, righthanders. Pearson has a record of two losses, and Dorsett of one in as many starts this season.

Outcome of today's game will be watched with no little interest in the Buckeye state where baseball fans divide allegiance between the Indians and Reds, largely in accord with the nearness of their residence to the northeastern or Southwestern Ohio club.

* * *

For the past two seasons Buckeye fans hoped in vain for an all-Ohio World series, and they're hoping again this year.

Except for Pitchers Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and Elmer Riddle, the entire Redleg roster was here en route home from an eastern swing which ended with a 1-0 victory over Boston yesterday.

Cleveland, rained out of a home game with Washington yesterday, is heading east to open a series with the New York Yankees Saturday. Outfielder Roy Weatherly remained in a Cleveland hospital because of a drop in blood pressure. Weatherly was hit in the head by a pitched ball in Wednesday's game.

'Old Man River' Rows On

Affectionately known as "Old Man River," Rev. Raymond C. Knox, 65-year-old chaplain of Columbia university, New York City, has departed from New York to row the 90 miles up the Hudson river to Poughkeepsie, scene of the intercollegiate regatta, June 25. Rev. Knox will stay with the team in training near there. For the past 35 years, the chaplain has rowed at least 200 days a year, averaging four miles a day—a total of 28,000 miles.

William Brann, owner of Challedon, says his big horse is coming along nicely and probably will tangle with Whirlaway before the year's over. And that, ladies and gents, should be a race!

BOSTON —(INS)— In a flat player-for-player deal, the Boston Braves today traded 35-year-old Lloyd Waner to the Reds for John Hutchins, 24-year-old right-handed hurler. Hutchins has seen little Major league service since his 1939 purchase from Pensacola of the Southeastern league.

Lady Golfers Confront Jinx

Semi-Finalists Clash For Crown Today.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, O.—(AP)—That old "Friday the 13th" jinx doesn't mean a thing to the four semi-finalists in the 12th annual women's western open golf championship. Anything that occurs probably will seem anti-climatic when compared with yesterday's quarter-final activities in the lower bracket.

The upper half of the draw rolled along as expected, with Patty Berg, the Minneapolis professional and former amateur champion, winning a semi-finals berth opposite Betty Jameson, the two-time national amateur queen from old San Antonio.

But in the other match, where the galleryites had expected Helen Dettweiler, the Washington professional and winner of the open in 1939, to meet Mary Agnes Wall, the star from Menominee, Mich., two newcomers to big time golf were found.

* * *

They are Mrs. James D. Platt, jr., of Dayton, the Ohio medal play champion, who tacked a convincing 7 and 6 defeat on Miss Wettweiler in the quarter finals, and Mrs. Burt Weil of Cincinnati, a three-time winner of the Ohio championship, who ushered Miss Wall to the sidelines, one down.

Miss Dettweiler did not win a hole from Mrs. Platt.

Miss Berg reached the semi-finals with a 3 and 2 decision over 17-year-old Georgia Tainter, western junior champion from Fargo, N. D., while Miss Jameson missed par by only one stroke in hammering out a 4 and 3 win over Miss Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, O.

THEATERS

Air Spectacle.

The training of America's birdmen provides "I Wanted Wings," opening at the Ohio Sunday, with a thrilling story. Made with the complete co-operation of the army air corps at Randolph, Kelly and March fields, the new film takes the audience through the training of America's air cadets and deals with the lives and loves of three airmen in particular. Starring Ray Milland, William Holden and Wayne Morris the picture has the blond newcomer, Veronica Lake and Constance Moore in the cast. Mitchell Leisen directed.

"A Woman's Face."

Hailed as one of the outstanding photoplays of 1941, "A Woman's Face," starring Joan Crawford opens Saturday at the Madison. It is the story of a girl's struggle to beat the world she hates because of her disfigurement and of her blossoming into a beautiful woman with the aid of plastic surgery. Packed with spectacular action the production casts Conrad Veidt in the role of a madman, who has the girl in his clutches, and Melvyn Douglas in the part of the surgeon. Reginald Owen and Donald Meek are cast. "Model Wife," with Joan Blondell and Dick Powell is the second feature.

Havana Hillbillies.

An Oklahoma hillbilly band that sets out to capture Broadway via Havana furnishes music and action in "Madame La Zonga," opening today at the Ritz. Lupe Velez plays "La Zonga," proprietress of a Havana night spot who closes her place before the band gets there and thereby opens the way to further difficulties. Eddie Quillan and Charles Lang head the band and Leon Errol and Helen Parrish help top the cast. Johnny Mack Brown in "Bury Me Not On the Lone Prairie," shares the bill.

Again the Menace.

Victor Jory after a brief sojourn in sympathetic roles returns to a menacing characterization in "Give Us Wings," showing at the Park. As the unscrupulous operator of an aerial crop-dusting company he provides broken-down planes to his youthful aviators to carry out their dangerous work. The "Dead End Kids" are the venturesome "dusters" and the cast also includes Anne Gwynne. Comedy is injected into the film by a gala fish fry. "The Border Legion," with Roy Rogers is Film No. 2.

Comedy Romance.

When two young moderns start dictating the love interest of their elders things begin to happen in "Double Date," a gay comedy starring Edmund Lowe and Una Merkel. Lowe plays the misunderstood father whose romance with Miss Merkel is thwarted by Peggy Moran and Rand Brooks. Daniel Boone's stirring fight to rout outlaws from Pecos, small western town on the road to Tuscon, is thrillingly depicted in "The Return of Daniel Boone," Bill Elliot's starring vehicle and the co-attraction. Betty Miles and Walter Soderling are in the cast.

DELAYS USE OF FOOD STAMPS UNTIL JULY 1

County Officials Say More Time Needed To Perfect System Here.

First use of the federal food stamp plan in the Mansfield and Richland county relief set-up probably will be delayed until July 1 to enable relief officials to complete preparations for the intricate system, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said today.

Inauguration of the stamp plan already has been delayed twice. It was first announced for June 10 and then for next Monday.

The stamps will be here sometime this month and they will be available to any of the other five agencies eligible to use them for distributing food supplies, Mitchell said. Most of the stamps, however, will be issued through the relief offices in Mansfield and Shelby.

County Relief Director J. V. Finney said more office equipment will be needed in both relief offices before the headquarters will be ready to issue stamps to relief clients.

Finney pointed out that the stamps may be used by other county welfare and federal aid agencies if they want them for distributing food orders and surplus commodities. Included in the list are the aid for aged division, WPA, soldiers' relief commission, Farm Security administration, and aid for the dependent children and the blind.

Dozens of retail food dealers in Mansfield and other Richland county towns are being signed by a special committee of grocers to handle the stamps. Only grocers who sign an agreement with the federal government will be eligible to accept the stamps and redeem them.

Orange stamps will be used for purchasing food orders and blue stamps for surplus commodities which are distributed free of charge by the federal government.

JUST KIDS
By Ad Carter
OF COURSE, I'M NOT MAD AT YOU—SUPPOSE WE TAKE A WALK AND YOU TELL ME ABOUT STRINGTOWN AND THINGS
THAT WOULD BE FINE, SIR.
GO RIGHT AHEAD, LAD—
STRINGTOWN IS QUITE A PLACE AND BY THE WAY, YOUNGSTER, WHY DON'T YOU LIKE POLICEMEN?
THEY ARRESTED MY UNCLE—AN' HE'S STILL IN JAIL—
6-13
YOU'RE GETTING TO BE QUITE A BIG BOY NOW, SO YOU SHOULD BE ABLE TO UNDERSTAND WHAT I'M GOING TO TELL YOU—POLICEMEN DO NOT LIKE TO ARREST PEOPLE—BUT WHEN PEOPLE COMMIT CRIMES IT'S THE POLICEMAN'S DUTY TO ARREST THEM—NOW, YOUR UNCLE MUST HAVE BROKEN THE LAW, AND WE DON'T WANT SNEAK THIEVES, BURGLARS OR MURDERERS RUNNING AROUND LOOSE, DO WE, MY BOY?
NO SIR
WELL, IT'S A POLICEMAN'S DUTY TO ARREST THEM JUST LIKE IT'S YOUR DUTY TO STUDY YOUR LESSONS AND DO YOUR CHORES—AND REMEMBER, YOUNGSTER, A POLICEMAN IS ALWAYS YOUR FRIEND—IF YOU'RE IN TROUBLE HE'LL PROTECT YOU—AND HE WILL AS HAS HAPPENED MANY TIMES, SAVE YOUR LIFE AT THE RISK OF HIS OWN, IF IT IS HUMANLY POSSIBLE—NOW DO YOU UNDERSTAND A LITTLE MORE ABOUT POLICEMEN?
YES, SIR—

STOCK MARKET LOSES SOME OF ITS BUOYANCY

Scattered Favorites Manage To Net Advances With Retail Sales Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market lost some of its recovery buoyancy today although scattered favorites managed to tack on fractional advances.

Attracting mild support were Western Union, Phelps Dodge, and Yellow Truck.

Inclined to waver were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Anaconda and Westinghouse.

Bullish forces derived some encouragement from the Dun & Bradstreet survey placing this week's retail spending throughout the country at 15 to 18 per cent above the comparable period a year ago.

Buying in wholesale markets "continued aggressive," the agency reported, "but bookings were becoming more difficult to effect as sellers approached a sold-up condition."

Will Nazis Follow Path of Crusaders on Cyprus?

One of the few accessible landing beaches on the island of Cyprus, British possession only 69 miles off the coast of Syria, Couer de Lion's Landing Beach on Akrotiri bay, on the south coast, may be the goal of German parachute troops if the Nazis follow the same procedure they did on Crete. Cyprus has been under German air attack. It was on this beach that King Richard I of England landed his Crusaders in 1191.

OK'S LEXINGTON LAKE PROPOSAL

C. of C. Director Approves It as Potential Source For City Water Supply.

John G. Routzon, secretary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, announced today that the chamber's board of directors had gone on record as favoring the creation of an artificial lake at Lexington to guard against a shortage in the city's water supply.

The secretary said that the chamber based its decision on the Gascoigne water survey made for the city several years ago. The survey pointed out that when the population of Mansfield nears the 60,000 mark, additional water would be needed for the city.

Routzon said that the construction of a lake on 170 acres to the west of U. S. Route 42 just north of the village was being sponsored by the Lexington Men's Service club for conservation purposes.

The Lexington men planned to use the lake for fishing and to build a game preserve. They contacted the Mansfield Chamber in order to obtain its support on the strength of the possible benefit from a reservoir.

The area covers a part of the city's water table. If the waters from freshets were dammed during the fall and spring, possible droughts might be avoided, Routzon said.

State engineers are to make surveys of the property and will report to the chamber on the condemnation cost, the land affected and the benefit to the city by water conservance.
